

CONTENTS

PREFACE 9

From Roman garrison to Habsburg residence

- Vindobona, Vindomina, Wenia 13
- The civitas metropolitana 19
- The city as an object of dynastic ambitions 24
- Art under the early Habsburgs 28
- The city as a family memorial 34
- International artistic relations and a politics of re-entrenchment 41
- Investigating the visible world and discovering Vienna 42
- The era of Frederick III 46

The Renaissance and Mannerism

- Marriage policies and Humanism 51
- Vienna beheaded 55
- Grabbing at the ‘golden apple of Christendom’: The first siege of Vienna by the Turks 56
- Plagues, Protestantism and eulogies 57
- Art during the ‘brothers’ feud’ 64

Baroque Vienna

- The Thirty Years War and Italians or would-be Italians 67
- The aftermath of the second Turkish siege: Competition between native and Italian artists 74
- Caravaggisti, Le Style classique* and the decorative manner 87
- The architect as chameleon 98

From Joseph II to the revolution of 1848

- Attempted reform under Joseph II 101
- Pomp under Leopold II and the artistic policy of Francis II 106
- The official style 116
- Social life and an unaddressed issue 122
- The 'Central Exhibition of Craft Products', the Rococo Revival and neo-Gothic 129

The era of Emperor Franz Joseph I

- The revolution of 1848 and its aftermath 133
- The Ringstrasse 138
- The 1873 world exhibition 153
- The Makart era 155
- Redemption through pity 160
- The apotheosis of amusement 164
- The future of the Baroque style* 166
- Belief in progress 169
- An 'apostle of the turnip', aesthetes and utopians 173
- The rustic style 181
- A new feeling for the human body 183
- From the plane to volume to space 190
- The Secessionists secede 194
- Silence amid the chatter 196
- The present disguised 199
- Collective pomp versus individual scrutiny 203
- The 'bank style' 206

A long beginning: 1918 to the present

- ‘Red’ Vienna 211
- The Werkbund estate and Modernism 216
- Spirituality and (new) sobriety 220
- A corporate state and the Third Reich 223
- Art after 1945 229
- ‘Phantasmagorics’ 233
- Viennese Actionism 235
- A second attempt: Modernist architecture and Art infomel 236
- Deconstructivism, Postmodernism and Postpostmodernism 238

Bibliography 247

- Rulers with their chief residence in Vienna 250
- Index 251