

Table of Contents

1. Conceptual parameters	11
1.1 A note on the state of research	11
1.2 Methodology of the study	13
1.3 The Ten Commandments of Field Research	13
1.4 Possibilities of approach	15
1.5 Position of researcher	16
1.6 The Arab female researcher	17
1.7 The Western female researcher	17
1.8 Choice of country	18
1.9 And why choose Sana'a	20
1.10 A note on transliteration	23
2. Introduction	25
2.1 Purpose of this study	25
2.2 The method adopted to meet this purpose	25
2.3 A presentation of Part One	26
2.4 Islamic Law	27
2.5 Inheritance laws in Islam	28
2.6 Theory and practice	30
2.7 Women's rights in the context of "Women in Islam"	31
2.8 Economic background and social patterns	32
2.9 Pre-Islamic doctrines	33
2.10 Women's inheritance – a fascinating topic?	34

3. Part One	37
3.1 Section A - The legal system	37
3.1.1 The sources of law	38
3.1.2 The judicial system	44
3.1.2.1 Legal education	44
3.1.2.2 Legal terminology	44
3.1.2.3 Historical background of inheritance rules	49
3.1.2.4 Historical documents	49
3.1.2.4.1 Koran	49
3.1.2.4.2 Sharia ( ṣarīʿa ) or codification of Islamic law	52
3.1.2.4.3 kitāb al-aḥkām fi-bayān al-halāl wa-l-harām Book of religious rules in showing the permitted and the forbidden	55
3.1.2.5 A handbook of inheritance used in Sana'a	58
3.1.2.5.1 ḥujb table	58
3.1.2.5.2 Three examples	60
3.1.2.5.3 A generation model	65
3.1.2.6 Yemen legal gazettes	66
3.1.2.7 A detailed questionnaire discussed with imams	69
3.1.2.8 A questionnaire submitted to the Mufti	76
3.2 Section B - Selected aspects of the legal system	78
3.2.1 A note on the female share	78
3.2.2 A note on mahr (dower, bridal money)	79
3.2.3 A note on munāsika (postponement of the division of inheritance)	83
3.2.4 A note on orphans, handicapped children and elopers	84

3.3	A final summarising note	86
4.	Part Two	87
4.1	Jurisprudence and sociology	87
4.2	Social structure	88
4.3	Marriage arrangements	91
4.4	Kinship terminology	93
4.5	Evidence for economic independence of women	94
4.6	Women's bank accounts - a contradiction in terms?	96
4.7	Interview environment	97
4.8	The interviews	101
4.8.1	Samira: a sāda a representative of the very modern women an example of division of inheritance without any documents	101
4.8.2	Aisha: a career woman and a devoted mother an example of land given to a female within the family while the rights to this land were retained	106
4.8.3	Malika: a very young wife, still at school she fully trusts the men in her family but her in-laws furnish examples for women cheated out of mahr <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• women cheated out of inheritance</li> <li>• women realising unfair division and going to court</li> </ul>	111
4.8.4	Munira: cuddled wife of a university professor not interested in studying but extremely well informed on division of inheritance example of a kalāla and of a contested waṣīya	118
4.8.5	Muna: illiterate wife of a land owner, a rich heiress, "controls" family property inoffensively example of a part- munāsika	121

4.9 A Note on Respective Literature	124
5. Conclusion	125
6. Bibliography	131