

Contents

Introduction	1
Editorial Notes	5
Abbreviations	5
Part I: C.G. Jung's Letters to Hedy Wyss (1936 – 1956)	7
The Letters of December 1936 to November 1943	7
The Three Entries into the Little Book of Monologues	44
Monologue in December 1943	44
Locarno 1. Jan 43. [actually 44]	47
Epilogue. Bollingen 12 I 1944.	48
The Letters of May 1944 to October 1956	49
Color Plates	I-XV
Part II: Commentary	71
1. Hedy Wyss and Her Manuscript "Lohengrin's Black Swan"	73
2. The Beginning of Analysis	79
"Live! Make Your Experiments!"	79
3. Marie-Louise von Franz and Hedy Wyss	84
4. The Paintings	87
5. Facets of Eros	91
"It is Important to Know what Your Eros is Aiming at"	95
The Art of Love	99
6. The Creative Flow of the Unconscious in Jung's Letters	102
"In the Darkness, One Ultimately Encounters the Light"	102
The Creative Daemon in Jung's Letters	105
Structures of the Unconscious: The Letter of December 18, 1940	108
1. "I Express Myself most often through Nuances"	110
2. Epicurus' Drove	111
3. Love as a Guide	111
4. Where Abides Your Creativity?	112
5. The Epiphany	113

7. C.G. Jung's Century Fantasy	115
The Legend of Jung's Lineage to Johann Wolfgang von Goethe	117
Sophie Jung-Ziegler	118
"I, Too, Am Such a Fool Who Looks Back"	120
Solar Eclipse	122
Intermezzo from the Monastery of Einsiedeln	124
Ascetic and Hermit in the Pleasure Gardens of the Earth	125
Once Again: Johann Wolfgang von Goethe	128
8. Jung's Heart Attack and His Dream of His Great-Grandmother	131
A Strange and Devilishly Difficult Time	131
C.G. Jung's Participation in the Resistance Movement	133
Jung's Dream in Geneva	135
The Ancestress: "You Are the Redeemer"	138
Salome: "You Are Christ"	139
Goethe's Faust	142
The Ancestress, the Book of Job, and the Apocalypse of John (Book of Revelation)	149
9. Jung's Great-Grandmother, the Ghost Woman, and Other Beings	155
Anima Haunting	155
"The Ghost Woman Is in You"	161
C.G. Jung's Grandfather Karl Gustav Jung	166
10. C.G. Jung, Hedy Wyss, and Bourgeois Morality	169
Hideous Paradoxes	169
On the Need for a Moral Standpoint	173
Individuation and Guilt	174
11. The Little Book of Monologues	178
Galatea's Throne	179
The Fragility of the Vitrum Sphaericum	181
12. Digression: The Haunting of Jung's House and the Septem Sermones ad Mortuos	185
The Haunting	185
"From Then On, My Life Belonged to the Generality"	187
The World of Fullness and the principium individuationis	188
A Lonely Star in the Zenith	191
"It Is Difficult to Remain True to Love"	194

13. The Little Book of Monologues (Continuation)	197
"A Stone of Gold for Your Mosaic"	197
Sol and Luna	199
The Epilogue	200
Dionysos and Ariadne or the Apotheosis of an Earthly Woman	200
A Festival of Life and Death (Epilogue)	205
Coniunctio Solis et Lunae	206
14. Reborn to the World – The Time After 1944	209
A Rose Nailed to the Cross	213
Adopting a Religious Attitude Toward Nature and the "Fig-Leaf Problem"	214
Alienation	220
The Objectivity of Love Beyond Emotional Ties	222
15. Surrounded by Death – Jung's Last Letters to Hedy Wyss	225
Two Memorial Stones	225
Toni Wolff	227
Emma Maria Jung-Rauschenbach	229
Appendix: Two Letters of Hedy Wyss to C.G. Jung	233
Illustrations	239
Color Plates	240
Bibliography	241