List of Figures	xvii
List of Tables	xix
Foreword	xxi
1. Setting the Scene	1
1.1 Evidence for Continuous Change	1
1.1.1 The Challenges of Prolonged Use	2
1.2 A Changing Focus in HCI	3
1.3 Framework for Long Term Interaction	5
1.3.1 Practice	5
1.3.2 Transfer	5
1.3.3 Exploration	6
1.3.4 Vocabulary	6
1.3.5 Flexibility	6
1.3.6 Process Dynamics	7
1.4 The Costs of Longitudinal Studies	8
1.5 The Sydney Study	8
1.6 Outline of the Book	9
2. The Long Haul From Novice to Expert	11
2.1 Skill Acquisition	11
2.1.1 The Power Law of Practice	13
2.1.2 Transfer	15
2.1.3 World Class Performance	17
2.2 The Problems of Novices	19
2.2.1 Active Learning	20
2.2.2 The Minimalist Paradigm	21
2.2.3 Learning by Exploration	22
2.2.4 Discussion	24
2.3 Experienced Performance	25
2.3.1 The Search for Optimality	25
2.3.2 GOMS Models	26

2.4	Longitudinal Studies	29
2.4.1	Rates of Working	29
2.4.2	Knowledge and Methods	29
2.4.3	Thinking Times	30
2.5	Conclusion	31
3.	Data Collection	33
3.1	Approaches to Longitudinal Data Collection in HCI.....	33
3.1.1	The Importance of an Appropriate Methodology	36
3.2	The White Rat of HCI	37
3.2.1	A Retrospective View of Text Editor Technology	37
3.2.2	The sam Editor	39
3.3	Monitoring at Sydney	41
3.3.1	The Research Group's Goals for the Study	41
3.3.2	Design Goals	42
3.3.3	The Monitoring Language	44
3.3.4	Examples	47
3.3.5	Data Management	51
3.3.6	Sources of Error	52
3.3.7	Analysis Tools	53
3.4	Cohorts	54
3.4.1	CS1 Cohorts	54
3.4.2	Three Year Undergraduate Cohorts	55
3.4.3	Four Year and Other Cohorts	56
3.5	Drop Out Rates	56
3.6	Summary	57
4.	Learning and Transfer	59
4.1	The First Lab	59
4.2	Task Descriptions	61
4.2.1	The quit Task	61
4.2.2	The insert Task	62
4.2.3	The keyboard write Task.....	62
4.2.4	Method of Calculating Learning Curves	63
4.3	Initial Learning in 1991	63
4.3.1	The Effect of Previous Word Processing Experience ...	65
4.3.2	The 1991 CS2 Cohort	66
4.3.3	Performance on the Time Dimension.....	67
4.3.4	Discussion	68
4.4	Initial Learning in 1992 and 1993	69
4.4.1	Changes to the Teaching	69
4.4.2	Performance Improvements	71
4.4.3	Improved Learning by the 92-95 Honours Cohort	72
4.4.4	Discussion	73
4.5	Typing Speeds	74

4.5.1	Changes Over 2 Years	74
4.6	Performance Improvements in Editing	76
4.7	Conclusions	77
5.	A Fresh Look at Vocabulary	79
5.1	Previous Work	79
5.2	Frequencies in the Sydney Study	81
5.2.1	The Effects of Sample Size on Observed Vocabulary . .	84
5.3	The Type Token Ratio	85
5.4	Trends in TTR	86
5.5	Transitions in the TTR	88
5.5.1	U-shaped Learning	91
5.6	Other Behaviours	92
5.7	Discussion	93
5.8	Conclusions	94
6.	Exploration	97
6.1	Previous Field Studies of Exploration	97
6.1.1	Styles and Stages	98
6.1.2	Models	99
6.2	Operational Definition of Exploration	99
6.3	Early Exploration	100
6.3.1	Quantity of Early Exploration	100
6.3.2	The Top 10 Measure	101
6.3.3	Cohort Analysis	103
6.3.4	Discussion	104
6.4	Continuous Exploration	105
6.4.1	Exploration Rate	106
6.4.2	Exploration Curves	106
6.4.3	Advent Surfaces	107
6.4.4	Cohort Comparison	108
6.4.5	Summary	110
6.5	Serendipity	110
6.5.1	Serendipitous Digrams	112
6.6	The Importance of Chance	115
6.7	Conclusions	116
7.	Crossovers	117
7.1	A Classification of Temporal Effects	117
7.1.1	System Delays	117
7.1.2	Task Gain	118
7.1.3	Learning Lag	120
7.2	Longitudinal Changes in <code>sam</code> Command Use	120
7.2.1	Population View	120
7.2.2	Individual View	122

7.3	File Write Methods	122
7.3.1	GOMS Model	123
7.3.2	Keystroke Level Model	124
7.4	Visualisation Technique	125
7.4.1	Measurement of Time	125
7.4.2	Command Preferences	125
7.4.3	User Numbers	126
7.5	File Write Crossover Results	126
7.5.1	The Range of Behaviours	126
7.5.2	Comparison of Cohorts	128
7.5.3	The Effect of Activity Rate	129
7.6	Discussion	130
7.6.1	Methodology	132
7.7	The Zone of Exploration Model	133
7.7.1	Example	134
7.7.2	Oscillation	134
7.7.3	Zone of Proximal Development	135
7.7.4	Type Token Ratio Constraints	136
7.8	Conclusion	137
8.	Conclusions	139
8.1	Methodologies	139
8.1.1	Continuous Monitoring	139
8.1.2	The Focus on Tasks	140
8.1.3	Treatment of Time	140
8.1.4	Retrospective Data	142
8.1.5	Cohorts	142
8.1.6	Cross-Sectional Populations	143
8.2	Process Dynamics	143
8.2.1	Vocabulary	143
8.2.2	Exploration	144
8.2.3	Crossovers	144
8.3	Implications for Design	145
8.3.1	Adaptive Interface Constraints	146
8.3.2	Support for Exploration	147
8.3.3	Support for Serendipity	147
8.4	Training, Education and Job Design	148
8.4.1	A Technological Underclass	148
