

Feng-Bing

Ethnicity, Children & Habitus

Ethnic Chinese School Children in Northern Ireland

Table of Content

Introduction	1
Chapter 1
Literature Review	7
1.1 Introduction	7
1.2 Race and Identity in Ethnic Chinese Children's Lives	8
1.3 Language and Communication	15
1.3.1 Social-Linguistic Dimension	15
1.3.2 Psycho-Linguistic Dimension	17
1.3.3 Linguistic Dimension	18
1.3.4 A Sociology of Language	19
1.4 Education and Employment: Experiences of Young Ethnic Chinese People	21
1.5 Background and Aims of the Current Book	24
Chapter 2
Theoretical Framework	27
2.1 Introduction	27
2.2 Post-Structuralist Critique on Classic Theories of Race and Ethnicity	27
2.2.1 The Context to Post-Structuralist Theorists	27
2.2.2 Differentialists	31
2.2.3 Post-Structural Cultural Theorists on Cultural Identity	33
2.3 Bourdieu's Concepts of 'Habitus', Capitals and Field	38
2.4 Elias's Concept of Figuration	42
2.5 Discourse as Internalised Habitus	44
2.6 Conclusion	45
Chapter 3
Searching for a Methodology	47
3.1 Introduction	47

3.2	What is Research Process?	49
3.3	Qualitative or Quantitative Approach	52
3.4	Approaches to Interviewing	54
3.4.1	Orthodox Approach to Interviewing	54
3.4.2	Qualitative Approaches to Interviewing	56
3.4.3	The Feminist Approach to Asking Questions	58
3.5	Observations	60
3.6	My Own Experience of Going through the Research Process	61
3.6.1	Getting Access to My Interviewees	63
3.6.2	Inside the Chinese School – A Place of Compromise	66
3.6.3	My First Teaching Experience in the Chinese School	67
3.6.4	The Final Sampling	69
3.6.5	On Ethical Considerations	71
3.7	Conclusion	72

Chapter 4

The Mainland Chinese School Children:

Practice of Relation-Building 75

4.1	Introduction	75
4.2	Identifying with the Host Culture	77
4.2.1	There is No Difference	82
4.2.2	I Am More Used to Here	85
4.2.3	They Don't Treat Us as Different	88
4.2.4	I Know More about 'Here'	90
4.2.5	The Important Part of my Life is Made Here in Britain	92
4.2.6	I Have No Attachment for China	95
4.2.7	The Chinese Would See Me as Different	96
4.2.8	Discrimination Is for Young Children and Bullying Is Natural	99
4.2.9	We Are Intelligent	103
4.3	Conclusion: Beyond Ethnic Difference	104

Chapter 5

The Hong Kong Chinese School Children:

The Construction of Cultural Alienation 109

5.1	Introduction	109
-----	--------------	-----

5.2	Sociological Perspective	110
5.3	Social, Cultural and Historical Conditions	113
5.4	General Patterns of Discourses	115
5.5	Ways with ‘Them’	117
5.5.1	They and We Are Not Friends	117
5.5.2	It’s Boring Here / More Interesting There	119
5.5.3	We Are Different from Them	121
5.5.4	We Have to Study and Work Instead of Associating with Them	124
5.5.5	They Are Racist and Don’t Want Chinese Around	128
5.5.6	They Call Us Names	132
5.5.7	My Parents Don’t Want Me to Carry On Chinese Restaurant When I Grow Up	138
5.6	Conclusions	140
Chapter 6
	Narratives of the Mainland Chinese Parents	143
6.1	Introduction	143
6.2	The Context of the Context	146
6.2.1	The Family Structure	146
6.2.2	The Historical and Cultural Background	147
6.2.3	The Cross-Cultural Background	149
6.3	The Discourses of Aversion to China and Mitigation of Ethnic Tension	150
6.3.1	The Issue of Education	150
6.3.2	The Issue of Leaving China / Settling Down in Northern Ireland	159
6.3.3	The Issue of Ethnic Isolation	162
6.3.4	The Issue of Bullying and Discrimination	167
6.4	Conclusion	174
Chapter 7
	Narratives of the Hong Kong Chinese Parents	177
7.1	Introduction	177
7.2	Background: Who Are They?	179
7.3	An Overview of Hong Kong Chinese in Northern Ireland	180

7.4	Discourses of Parents from Hong Kong	182
7.4.1	Talking about Racial Problems in Northern Ireland	182
7.4.2	Talking about Their Children's Future	189
7.4.3	Talking about Learning Chinese Language	193
7.4.4	Talking about Family Problems	196
7.5	Conclusion	201
Chapter 8
	Discussion and Conclusion	205
8.1	Introduction	205
8.2	Research Findings	205
8.2.1	What Are the Differences between the Two Young Sub-Ethnic Chinese Groups?	205
8.2.2	Why Do These Children Tell Different Stories?	208
8.3	The Contributions of the Current Book	216
8.3.1	Home – the Basic Figuration of All Social Networks	216
8.3.2	Deconstructing the Generalized Image	218
8.3.3	Developing the Concepts of Habitus and Figuration	221
8.3.4	Incorporating Discourse Analysis with the Concept of Habitus	224
8.4	Conclusion	225
Postscript
	A Critical Reflection on the Research Process	227
	Introduction	227
	Social Class	227
	Gender Difference	230
	National and Ethnic Identities	231
	My Own Role in the Research Process	235
	Remaining Issues and Future Research	239
	Conclusion	240
	Bibliography	241
	Appendix	251