

CONTENTS

FOREWORD	v
ABOUT THE AUTHOR	vii
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	vii
LIST OF TABLES	xiii
LIST OF FIGURES	xiv
ANNEX CONTENTS	xv
GLOSSARY	xvi
ABBREVIATIONS	xvii
1 INTRODUCTION	1
1.1 The problem	1
1.2 Subject, objective and scope of the study	3
1.3 Terminology	4
2 NUTRITION CONCEPTS AND THEIR RELEVANCE FOR DEVELOPMENT	5
2.1 Concepts of the genesis of malnutrition in a historical perspective	6
2.2 The current concept of nutrition	10
2.3 Scope for activity	13
3 THE ROLE OF NUTRITION IN INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT ASSISTANCE IN A HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVE	17
3.1 Phase I (the 1950s and 1960s)	17
3.2 Phase II (the 1970s)	19
3.3 Phase III (the 1980s)	23
3.4 The current state of art	26
4 APPROACHES FOR INTEGRATING NUTRITION CONSIDERATIONS IN DEVELOPMENT ASSISTANCE	31
4.1 The FAO approach	31
4.1.1 History and objectives	31
4.1.2 Methodological features	34
4.1.3 Instruments	35
4.1.3.1 Desk review	35

4.1.3.2	Initial assessment	37
4.1.3.3	In-depth study	39
4.2	The GTZ approach	41
4.2.1	History and objectives	41
4.2.2	Methodological features	42
4.2.3	The instrument: nutrition survey	42
5	THE GTZ METHODOLOGY IN PRACTICE - A CASE STUDY IN FLORES (INDONESIA)	45
5.1	Introduction to the nutrition survey Flores	46
5.1.1	The Project PPSTN	46
5.1.2	Objectives and organisation of the nutrition survey	46
5.2	Methodology of the nutrition survey Flores	48
5.3	Results of the nutrition survey Flores	53
5.3.1	Socioeconomic data	53
5.3.2	Villagers' self-assessment	64
5.3.3	Food habits and food intake	69
5.3.4	Health, disease and prevention	81
5.3.5	Nutrition status	87
5.4	Analysis of determinants of the nutrition status in Flores	97
5.4.1	Relationship between selected socioeconomic data and nutrition status ..	98
5.4.2	Relationship between nutrition-related diseases and nutrition status	100
5.4.3	Relationship between infant/child nutrition and nutrition status	102
5.4.4	Analysis of potential determinants of diarrhoeal diseases	104
5.5	Discussion of findings of the nutrition survey Flores and conclusions derived	104
5.5.1	Symptoms of the "nutrition problem"	105
5.5.2	Causes and determinants of the "nutrition problem"	106
5.5.3	Main determinants of malnutrition - a problem tree	107
5.5.4	Conclusions	109
5.5.5	Risk and intervention groups	110
5.6	Recommendations submitted to the IFSP Flores	111
5.7	Indicators of project impact of the IFSP Flores	117
5.7.1	Nutrition status	117
5.7.2	Child morbidity	119
5.7.3	Infant mortality	120
5.7.4	Immunization	120
5.8	Preliminary evaluation of the IFSP Flores - clues for the approach of nutrition integration	121
6	CRITICAL REVIEW OF THE FAO AND GTZ APPROACHES FOR INTEGRATING NUTRITION IN DEVELOPMENT PROJECTS	127
6.1	Critical review of the FAO approach	128
6.1.1	General experiences with the FAO approach so far	129

6.1.2	Critical issues and recommendations	131
6.1.2.1	Basic concepts and strategies	131
6.1.2.2	Introducing nutrition concerns - who does it when?	133
6.1.2.3	Targeting an assessment	135
6.1.2.4	Documentation	137
6.1.3	Strengths and shortcomings of the FAO approach in brief	138
6.2	Critical review of the GTZ approach	139
6.2.1	General experiences with the GTZ approach so far	141
6.2.2	Critical issues and recommendations	143
6.2.2.1	Conceptual issues	143
6.2.2.2	Preparing for a nutrition survey	145
6.2.2.3	Data to be assessed	148
6.2.2.4	Documentation	154
6.2.2.5	Quantitative indicators of project impact	155
6.2.3	Strengths and shortcomings of the GTZ approach in brief	156
6.3	Comparison of the FAO and GTZ approaches	157
7	SUMMARIZING DISCUSSION AND RECOMMENDATIONS FOR AN ENHANCED AND IMPROVED CONSIDERATION OF NUTRITION ASPECTS IN DEVELOPMENT ASSISTANCE	161
7.1	Deficits of the data base	161
7.2	Why nutrition integration in development assistance?	163
7.2.1	The rationale of nutrition integration	163
7.2.2	The potential contribution of nutrition integration to project work	166
7.3	Obstacles for the integration of nutrition aspects into project work and recommendations for their removal	168
7.3.1	The agency's commitment and organizational structures	169
7.3.2	The approach	172
7.3.3	The methodology	176
7.3.3.1	Qualitative vs. quantitative survey techniques	178
7.3.3.2	Assessment of food consumption	182
7.3.3.3	Data analysis	185
7.3.3.4	Presentation of survey findings and their transformation into project activities	187
8	EPILOGUE	191
9	SUMMARY	195
10	ZUSAMMENFASSUNG	199
ANNEX		203
REFERENCES		235