

1	Subject Area of Cross-Cultural Psychology	1
1.1	Aims of Cross-Cultural Psychology	1
1.2	Different Research Directions	2
1.3	Cross-Cultural Psychology in the Canon of Psychological Subjects	2
1.4	Concept of Culture	4
1.5	Historical Development	6
1.6	Conclusion	9
1.7	Questions of Understanding	10
2	Methodological Considerations	13
2.1	Etic Versus Emic Approach	13
2.1.1	Two Views	13
2.1.2	Universality Versus Uniqueness	18
2.1.3	Outside View Versus Inside View	19
2.2	Comparability of the Objects of Investigation	20
2.2.1	Object of Comparison and Standard of Comparison . .	20
2.2.2	Equivalence Postulates	20
2.2.3	Consequences for Cross-Cultural Comparison	24
2.3	Methods of Data Collection and Analysis	25
2.4	Selection of Suitable Study Units	33
2.4.1	Selection of Cultures	34
2.4.2	Selection of Individuals	35
2.4.3	Selection of Situations and Instruments	35
2.5	Statistical Testing of Hypotheses	36
2.6	Conclusion	38
2.7	Questions of Understanding	39

3	Culture and Phylogenetic Development	41
3.1	Human Universals as a Result of Natural Selection	41
3.2	Adaptation and Exaptation	43
3.3	Conclusion	45
3.4	Questions of Understanding	46
4	Nature-Nurture Controversy from a Cross-Cultural Perspective	47
4.1	Universal and Differential “Nature”	47
4.2	Genetic Make-Up and Cultural Influence	48
4.3	Conclusion	51
4.4	Questions of Understanding	52
5	Description and Classification of Cultures	53
5.1	Cultural Factors	53
5.2	Cultural Dimensions According to Hofstede	54
5.3	Cultural Dimensions According to Schwartz	57
5.4	Cultural Dimensions According to the GLOBE Research Group	58
5.5	Cultural Dimensions According to the World Values Survey . .	59
5.6	Cultural Dimensions According to Trompenaars	59
5.7	Cultural Dimensions According to Hall	60
5.8	Comparison of the Dimensional Approaches to Culture Description	62
5.9	Context Factors: The Human Development Index (HDI)	62
5.10	Conclusion	65
5.11	Questions of Understanding	66
6	Perception	67
6.1	Perception and Experience	67
6.2	Brunswik’s Theory of Transactional Functionalism	68
6.3	Whorf’s Principle of Linguistic Relativity	71
6.4	Conclusion	75
6.5	Questions of Understanding	75
7	Cognitive Abilities and Performance	77
7.1	Deficit Versus Difference Model	77
7.2	General Intelligence Versus Specific Abilities and Performances	78
7.3	Antecedents of Cognitive Differences	81

7.3.1	Individualist Versus Collectivist Mode of Thinking	81
7.3.2	Confucian Dynamics	84
7.3.3	Mother Tongue	84
7.3.4	School Education	87
7.3.5	Minority Status	88
7.3.6	Poverty	89
7.4	A Model for the Interaction of Culture and Cognition	90
7.5	Conclusion	95
7.6	Questions of Understanding	95
8	Emotion	97
8.1	Feeling and Emotion	97
8.2	Categorisation of Emotions	98
8.3	Emergence and Expression of Emotions	99
8.3.1	Emotion Theories	99
8.3.2	Process Model of Emotion	100
8.3.3	Situations that Trigger Emotions	101
8.3.4	Appraisal of Emotion Triggering Situations	102
8.3.5	Manifestation of Emotions	103
8.3.6	Coping with Emotions	105
8.4	Recognition of Emotions	105
8.5	Conclusion	107
8.6	Questions of Understanding	107
9	Language and Communication	109
9.1	Language as a Means of Exchanging Information	109
9.2	Language as a Species-Specific and Culture-Specific Characteristic	110
9.3	Comparability of Verbal Utterances	112
9.4	Linguistic Universals	114
9.5	Linguistic and Communicative Relativity	115
9.6	Communication Model According to Schulz von Thun	116
9.7	Cultural Factors as Antecedents of Language Use	118
9.7.1	Individualism-Collectivism and Power Distance	118
9.7.2	Masculinity-Femininity	120
9.8	Conclusion	121
9.9	Questions of Understanding	121

10	Personality	123
10.1	Culture and Personality from a Psychoanalytical Point of View	123
10.2	Dimensional Description of Personality	125
10.2.1	Cross-Cultural Validity of Personality Factor Models	125
10.2.2	Cultural Differences in Single Personality Factors	128
10.3	Conclusion	129
10.4	Questions of Understanding	130
11	Sex and Gender	131
11.1	Universality and Culture-Specificity of Gender Differences	131
11.2	Biological Basis of Gender Differences	132
11.3	Gender Differences and Economic Development	133
11.4	Gender Differences and Cultural Values	134
11.5	Conclusion	136
11.6	Questions of Understanding	137
12	Development in Childhood and Adolescence	139
12.1	Maturation and Learning in Childhood and Adolescence	139
12.2	Role Expectations in Childhood and Adolescence	143
12.3	Testing the Universal Validity of Cognitive Development Models	144
12.3.1	Piaget's Stage Model of the Development of Childrens' Thinking	144
12.3.2	Cognitive Development as a Gradual Process	147
12.3.3	Kohlberg's Stage Model of the Development of Moral Judgement	148
12.3.4	Language Development	149
12.4	Achievement Behaviour in Childhood and Adolescence	149
12.5	Social Behaviour in Childhood and Adolescence	151
12.5.1	Aggressive Behaviour	152
12.5.2	Prosocial Behaviour	154
12.6	Conclusion	154
12.7	Questions of Understanding	155
13	Working World	157
13.1	Organisational Structure and Organisational Culture	158
13.2	Work Attitude and Work Motivation	159
13.3	Work Performance	162

13.4	Leadership Behaviour	163
13.5	Decision-Making Behaviour	164
13.6	Work Behaviour	166
13.6.1	Use of Time	166
13.6.2	Incorrect Actions	168
13.7	Group Work	170
13.8	Conclusion	171
13.9	Questions of Understanding	172
14	Mental Disorders	173
14.1	Cross-Cultural Versus Culture-Specific Diagnostics	173
14.2	Depression	174
14.3	Schizophrenia	175
14.4	Anxiety Disorders	175
14.5	Suicide	176
14.6	Conclusion	177
14.7	Questions of Understanding	178
15	Final Remarks	179
15.1	Possibilities and Limits of Cross-cultural Psychology	179
15.2	Consequences for Intercultural Cooperation	182
15.3	Conclusion	184
	References	185
	Index	201