

Contents

|    |                                                                                                   |     |
|----|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| 1  | By the Sure Path of Experimentation . . . . .                                                     | 1   |
| 2  | Fiat Lux . . . . .                                                                                | 19  |
| 3  | To Göttingen . . . . .                                                                            | 35  |
| 4  | From the Maroseika to Chistiye Prudy . . . . .                                                    | 47  |
| 5  | Petrograd – and Back to Moscow . . . . .                                                          | 61  |
| 6  | Where the Crowned Heads of Science Gather . . . . .                                               | 81  |
| 7  | Professor Born’s Circle of Friends . . . . .                                                      | 103 |
| 8  | “Then, As Now, Physicists Went About Their Workand Regarded It As Perfectly Normal” . . . . . | 119 |
| 9  | Metamorphosis . . . . .                                                                           | 131 |
| 10 | “I Shall Leave Neither Tomorrow Nor the Day After” . . . . .                                      | 145 |
| 11 | The Choice . . . . .                                                                              | 161 |
| 12 | Cascades and Showers . . . . .                                                                    | 185 |
| 13 | Pentoptics . . . . .                                                                              | 211 |
| 14 | Earning a Living as an Engineer . . . . .                                                         | 235 |
| 15 | Teaching the Teachers . . . . .                                                                   | 257 |
| 16 | On Pearl Street . . . . .                                                                         | 277 |
| 17 | In the Beginning was Mechanics . . . . .                                                          | 289 |
|    | References . . . . .                                                                              | 311 |
|    | Biography . . . . .                                                                               | 315 |