

Table of Contents

Acknowledgments	11
List of abbreviations	13
Introduction	15
Fist Part Historical Philosophy and Neo-Kantianism	25
1. Historical Philosophy	27
1.1. The Scope of Historical Philosophy	27
1.2. The Concept of Historical Philosophy	29
1.3. Origin and Development of Historical Philosophy	33
1.4. Historical Philosophy and Neo-Kantianism	43
1.5. Conclusions	47
2. Neo-Kantian Philosophy	49
2.1. Main Challenges of defining Neo-Kantianism	50
2.2. The Return to Kant	60
2.2.1. Eduard Zeller and the Task of the Theory of Knowledge	62
2.2.2. Kuno Fischer's Interpretation of Kant	65
2.2.3. Lotze's Realm of Validity	67
2.3. Conclusions	74
Second Part Windelband's Philosophical Program	75
3. Philosophical Preludes	77
3.1. Bio-Bibliographical Sketch	79
3.2. Windelband's Definition of Philosophy	84
3.2.1. Judgment and Assessment	91
3.2.2. Normative Consciousness	96
3.3. Socrates and Kant	98
3.4. Teleological Criticism	106

3.5. Conclusions	111
4. History and the Philosophical Method	113
4.1. The Critical Method	115
4.1.1. Philosophical Background of Windelband's Conception of the Philosophical Method	116
4.1.2. Windelband's Interpretation of the Critical Method	119
4.2. Psychology as the Organon of Philosophy	127
4.3. History as the Organon of Philosophy	133
4.4. History and Historical Relativism	139
4.5. Conclusions	142
5. The Philosophy of History	143
5.1. The Logic of History	147
5.2. History and the Natural Sciences	153
5.3. History and Norms	166
5.4. The Philosophy of History	170
5.5. Conclusions	173
6. The History of Philosophy	175
6.1. The Epochal Context	177
6.2. The Necessity of the History of Philosophy	183
6.3. The History of Problems	195
6.4. Conclusions	207
Third Part Historical Philosophy acknowledged	209
7. From Neo-Kantianism to Neo-Hegelianism	211
7.1. The Renewal of Hegelianism	212
7.2. Philosophy of Culture and Historical Philosophy	218
7.3. Über Hegel hinausgehen?	223
7.4. Conclusions	228

Conclusions	231
Bibliography	235
Index	249