

Contents

Preface	vii
Acknowledgments	xi
1 “under my protection and name....” – Origins and Founding of the Institute	1
Haber’s Institute during the First World War	25
2 The “Golden Years” of Haber’s Institute	35
Rebuilding within the Kaiser Wilhelm Society	48
Research Orientation: Colloid Chemistry and Atomic Structure	63
Physical and Theoretical Chemistry	69
Spectroscopy and Quantum Physics	81
3 The “National Socialist Model Enterprise”	89
Ousters and Reorganizations	90
Research Activities	107
Integration into the National Socialist System	119
4 A Patchwork Institute	131
Structure Research under Laue	150
The Special Case of Ruska	160
Rudolf Brill and the end of the Laue era	169
5 Reshaping the Fritz Haber Institute	183
Research Programs, Initiated and Expired	184
The Institute for Electron Microscopy (IFE) – between Science and Technology	195
Alexander Bradshaw and Synchrotron Research in Berlin (BESSY) . . .	206
Fritz Haber Institute as an International Center for Surface Science . .	214
6 Current Era	233
Ushering in the Institute’s next hundred years	233
Theory Department	235
Department of Inorganic Chemistry	241
Department of Chemical Physics	248
Department of Molecular Physics	255
Department of Physical Chemistry	262

Contents

Members of the Advisory Board 1981– 2011	271
List of References	273
Archives	297
List of Figures	299
Index	301