Preface — V

Chapter 1

Embryology, anatomy, and physiology — 1

- 1.1 Introduction — 1
- 1.2 Embryology — 1
- 1.3 Development abnormalities — 5
 - 1.3.1 Congenital agenesis and atresia — 6
 - 1.3.2 Horseshoe appendix — 6
 - 1.3.3 Appendiceal duplication — 6
 - 1.3.4 Other appendiceal abnormalities — 7
 - 1.3.5 Ectopic appendices and appendiceal herniation — 7
 - 1.3.6 Surgical and diagnostic implications — 8
- 1.4 Normal and comparative anatomy — 8
- 1.5 Appendix in veterinary medicine — 14
- 1.6 Acute appendicitis in animals — 15
- 1.7 The physiology of the safe house — 16
- 1.8 Immunologic role of the appendix — 19
 - 1.8.1 Immune cell distribution in the appendiceal layers — 19
 - 1.8.2 Unique lymphocyte surface markers and immunological functions — 20
 - 1.8.3 The appendix and ulcerative colitis: a hypothetical link — 21
 - 1.8.4 The hygiene hypothesis and immune dysregulation — 23
- 1.9 Future perspectives — 24
- 1.10 Artificial intelligence diagnostics — 25
- References — 26

Chapter 2

Inflammatory diseases — 30

- 2.1 Introduction — 30
- 2.2 Pathophysiology and differential diagnosis — 32
- 2.3 Clinical presentation — 43
 - 2.3.1 McBurney sign — 44
 - 2.3.2 Rovsing's sign — 45
 - 2.3.3 Obturator sign — 45
 - 2.3.4 The psoas sign — 46
 - 2.3.5 Interpretation of clinical signs — 47
- 2.4 Laboratory and imaging studies — 48
- 2.5 Scoring systems — 52
- 2.6 Microbiology — 57

2.7	Treatment —	59
2.8	Surgical techniques —	66
2.8.1	History of appendectomy —	66
2.8.2	Open appendectomy —	68
2.8.3	Laparoscopic appendectomy —	69
2.8.4	Alternative minimally invasive techniques —	71
2.8.5	Open versus laparoscopic appendectomy: current trends and evidence —	73
2.8.6	Adjunctive considerations in appendectomy —	74
2.8.7	Robotic appendectomy —	75
2.9	Surgical circumstances and special populations —	77
2.9.1	Special populations —	78
2.9.2	Complications of appendectomy —	82
2.9.3	Postoperative care and recovery after appendectomy —	84
2.10	Rare diseases of the appendix —	86
2.10.1	Appendiceal diverticulosis and diverticulitis —	87
2.10.2	Endometriosis of the appendix —	87
2.10.3	Amyloidosis of the appendix —	88
2.10.4	Appendiceal mucocele —	90
2.10.5	Tuberculosis of the appendix —	90
2.10.6	Actinomycosis of the appendix —	91
2.11	Misdiagnosis and legal implications —	93
2.11.1	Introduction —	93
2.11.2	Causes of diagnostic errors —	93
2.11.3	Medicolegal aspects —	95
2.11.4	Ethical considerations —	96
	References —	96

Chapter 3

Malignancies — 103

3.1	Primary malignancies —	103
3.1.1	Histopathology —	107
3.1.2	Diagnosis and follow-up —	111
3.1.3	Treatment —	116
3.2	Secondary malignancies —	119
3.2.1	Introduction —	119
3.2.2	Epidemiology and pathogenesis —	120
3.2.3	Diagnostic approaches and treatment strategies —	121
	References —	123
