

Contents

The Trend Towards Statistical Models in Natural Language Processing Mark Y. Liberman	1
Phonological Data Types Ewan Klein	9
Surface Structure, Intonation, and "Focus" Mark Steedman	21
Lexical Issues in Natural Language Processing Ted Briscoe	39
Linguistic Theory and Natural Language Processing Ivan A. Sag	69
Parametric Variation Elisabet Engdahl	85
Approaches to Realisation in Natural Language Generation Chris Mellish	95
Deductive Interpretation Fernando C. N. Pereira	117
On the Representation and Transmission of Information Hans Kamp	135
Natural Language: From Knowledge to Cognition Johan van Benthem	159
Position papers for the panel session: Spoken Language Systems: Technological Goals and Integration Issues	173
1. Overview Henry S. Thompson	173

2. Steps Towards Accurate Speech-to-Speech Translation Jaime G. Carbonell	174
3. Future Directions of Speech Recognition Research Sadaoki Furui	175
4. Speech-to-Speech Translation Jan Landsbergen	177
5. The Role of Linguistic Data in Speech Technology Mark Y. Liberman	179
6. Text-to-Speech Research: Technological Goals and Integration Issues Christel Sorin	182
7. System Architectures as the Key Issues for Speech Understanding Walther von Hahn	184
Curricula Vitae	189