

Contents

Preface	ix
1. Introduction	1
1. Linguistic semantics	2
2. Dimensions of imagery	5
3. Grammar as image	12
4. Grammatical organization	15
5. Grammatical classes	19
6. Grammatical constructions	23
7. Conclusion	32
2. Inside and outside in Cora	33
1. Theoretical preliminaries	35
2. Enclosure	37
3. Topographical domain	41
4. Accessibility	45
5. Scope	51
6. Implications	55
3. Nouns and verbs	59
1. Issues	59
2. Basic concepts	61
3. Bounding	63
4. Interconnection	66
5. Count vs. mass nouns	69
6. Relations	74
7. Processes	78
8. Motivation	81
9. Perfective vs. imperfective processes	85
10. Progressives	91
11. Abstract nouns	97
12. Conclusion	100

4. The English passive	101
1. Grammar and analyzability	102
1.1. Economy	102
1.2. Components	104
1.3. The symbolic nature of grammar	105
1.4. Semantic structure	108
1.5. Grammatical morphemes	110
1.6. Overtness of grammatical structure	113
1.7. Continuum of lexicon, morphology, and syntax	115
2. Descriptive framework	116
2.1. Linguistic organization	116
2.2. Syntagmatic combination	120
3. The passive construction	127
3.1. The perfect participle	129
3.2. The passive be	135
3.3. By-phrases	139
3.4. Related phenomena	143
5. Abstract motion	149
1. Basic concepts and assumptions	149
2. The characterization of verbs	152
3. Objective motion	155
4. Subjective motion	157
5. Avenues of semantic extension	160
6. Grammatical valence	165
1. Canonical instances	167
2. Noncanonical instances	174
3. Further departures from the canon	179
4. Scope and morphological layering	183
7. Active zones	189
1. The phenomenon	189
2. Analysis	193
3. Grammatical implications	196
8. The Yuman auxiliary	203

9. Transitivity, case, and grammatical relations	209
1. The conception of actions and events	209
2. Unmarked linguistic coding	211
2.1. Some basic grammatical constructs	211
2.2. Selection	213
2.3. Heads and tails	216
2.4. Complexities	219
2.5. Subjective asymmetry	222
2.6. Subject and object	224
3. Marked coding	226
3.1. Lexical options	226
3.2. Voice	229
3.3. Setting vs. participants	230
4. Case	234
4.1. General comments	234
4.2. Role archetypes	236
4.3. Correlation with grammatical relations	239
4.4. Ergative/absolutive systems	241
4.5. The structure of events	243
4.6. Ergativity	246
4.7. Other case phenomena	249
5. Causative constructions	254
5.1. Complex events	254
5.2. Causatives derived from intransitives	256
5.3. Causatives derived from transitives	258
10. A usage-based model	261
1. Two conceptions of generality	261
2. The network conception	266
3. General applicability	272
4. Distribution	278
5. Conclusion	288
11. Autonomy and agreement	289
1. The autonomy issue	289
2. The symbolic alternative	292
3. Grammatical markings	301
4. Agreement	307
5. Conclusion	313

12. Subjectification	315
1. Perspective	315
2. Grounding	318
3. The nature of subjectification	324
4. A spatial example	326
5. The future sense of 'go'	330
6. Modals	333
7. Possession and perfect aspect	337
8. Conclusion	341
Final remarks	343
Notes	345
Chapter 1	345
Chapter 2	346
Chapter 3	349
Chapter 4	352
Chapter 5	358
Chapter 6	359
Chapter 7	359
Chapter 8	360
Chapter 9	360
Chapter 10	364
Chapter 11	365
Chapter 12	365
Bibliography	367
Index	383