

Contents

Page

1	Chapter I. The Cultural Embeddedness of Means of Payment and Credit
2	I.1. Substantivism, Formalism and the Power behind Standards of Value
5	I.1.1. The Functions of Money and Credit from the Substantivist Perspective
9	I.1.2. The Formalist View on Money and Credit
12	I.1.3. The Power behind Setting a Standard of Value
14	I.1.4. The Sanctioning of Standards of Value
18	I.1.5. Liquidating and Incorporating Transactional Modes
22	I.2. The Cultural Embeddedness of Debt and Credit
23	I.2.1. Debt and World-View
27	I.2.2. The Temple as a Source of Credit
30	I.3. Credit, Exchange and Property Relations
33	I.3.1. Credit in Reciprocal Systems
34	I.3.2. Credit in Redistributional Systems
38	I.3.3. Rotating Credit Associations and the Market
39	I.4. Lending and Usury
42	I.4.1. Interest as a Natural Share
44	I.4.2. Credit Securities and Relations of Trust
46	I.5. Hypothesis

Page

57 Chapter II. The Historical Development of Credit Practices in Nepal

57	II.1.	The Development of Coinage and Currency
60	II.2.	Credit in the Realm of the King
61	II.2.1.	Institutional Credit Practices and the Temple
67	II.2.2.	Credit-Worthiness and Caste Status
70	II.3.	Credit Practices after the Foundation of the Nation-State of Nepal
72	II.3.1.	Credit Relations and Relations of Power
75	II.3.2.	Credit Relations in the Legal Code of 1854
80	II.3.3.	Indebtedness and Enslavement
82	II.3.4.	Decision Making and Arbitration
83	II.4.	The Modern Period of Credit Practices and the Development of Cooperatives
84	II.4.1.	The Land Reform Act of 1964
88	II.4.2.	The Introduction and Need of Credit Programmes
99	II.4.3.	Two Examples of Culturally Embedded Credit Cooperatives

107 Chapter III. Credit-Worthiness among the High Hindu Castes

110	III.1.	Family Structure and Property Relations
114	III.2.	Labour Exchange and Wage Labour in the Locality
119	III.3.	Patronage Relations
125	III.4.	Barter and Borrowing
127	III.5.	Credit Practices
139	III.6.	Credit-Worthiness and Gift Exchange

Contents

Page
153	Chapter IV. Credit Relations within the Guthī System of the Newars
155	IV.1. Family Structure and Property Relations
165	IV.2. Labour Exchange and Wage Labour in the Locality
170	IV.3. Patronage Relations
178	IV.4. Trade and Barter
185	IV.5. Credit Practices
197	IV.6. Credit-Worthiness and Gift Exchange
207	Chapter V. Credit and Ritual Exchange among the Sherpas
211	V.1. Family Structure and Property Relations
217	V.2. Labour Exchange and Wage Labour in the Locality
223	V.3. Patronage Relations
234	V.4. Trade and Barter
240	V.5. Credit Practices
248	V.6. Credit-Worthiness and Gift Exchange
261	Chapter VI. Discussion of the Results
262	VI.1. The Historical Development of Credit Practices in Nepal
270	VI.2. Family Structure and Property Relations

Page
273	VI.3. Labour Exchange and Wage Labour
273	VI.4. Patronage Relations
276	VI.5. Borrowing, Barter and Trade
280	VI.6. Credit Practices
283	VI.7. Credit-Worthiness and Gift Exchange
289	Appendices
290	Introduction
293	Appendix I: Debt documents (tamsuk) from Nepal
330	Appendix II: The Law of Debt (1854 A.D)
336	Appendix III: Selected Facsimiles
351	Bibliographies
351	Works in Nepali and Newari
352	Works in other languages
373	Glossary