

Contents

Chapter One

Theorizing Collective Memory as Currency — 1

- 1.1 Introduction: Why Collective Memory? — 2
- 1.2 Collective Memory as Currency: Navigating the Past in the Present's Marketplace of Ideas — 4
- 1.3 Why Currency and Why Collective Memory? Toward a Theoretical Framework — 9

Chapter Two

Holocaust Memory as Exemplar — 17

- 2.1 Holocaust Memory as Currency — 18
- 2.2 What Can We Learn about the Currency Value of Holocaust Memory from COVID-19? — 23
- 2.3 Holocaust Memory as a Guiding Framework in the Era of COVID-19 — 27

Chapter Three

Analogical Memory — 32

- 3.1 Evocation of Past Events — 33
- 3.2 Evocation of Past Figures — 36
- 3.3 Method — 37
- 3.4 How Historical Figures Are Evoked in Political Speech — 38
- 3.5 Evoking Historical Events and Figures as Analogies: Concluding Remarks — 44

Chapter Four

Collective Memory in an Age of Digital Transformations – A Different Kind of Currency? — 46

- 4.1 Shaping the Past, Connecting the Present: The Transformation of Memory in the Digital Era — 48
- 4.2 Digital Memories: Shifting Archiving Practices? — 49
- 4.3 Visual Narratives of Isolation and Resilience: Analyzing the Picturing Lockdown Collection in the Age of COVID-19 — 52
- 4.4 #ColorOurCollections: How Digital Engagement with History Can Help Revive Collective Memory — 55

- 4.5 Juxtaposing Picturing Lockdown with Color Our Collections: How Institutional Efforts and Grassroots Movements Use Digital Platforms to Shape, Share, and Preserve Collective Memories in Contemporary Times — 58
- 4.6 Agents of Remembrance in a New Memory Terrain — 61
- 4.7 Reassessing the Currency Value of Memory in the Digital Age — 65
- 4.8 Challenges and Volatility of Memory in the Digital Age — 69

Chapter Five

De-commemoration Practices — 71

- 5.1 What Is De-commemoration? — 72
- 5.2 De-Commemoration as Protest: A Comparative Analysis of Israeli and Spanish Memory Landscapes — 76
- 5.3 De-commemoration as a Cultural Performance — 87

Chapter Six

Concluding Remarks - Towards the fourth wave of Memory Studies? — 92

- 6.1 Natural Disasters and the Changing Landscape of Memory — 93
- 6.2 Expanding the Repertoire of Memory Studies: Natural Disasters as Collective Memories — 95
- 6.3 Why Not Natural Disasters? — 97
- 6.4 Numbers, Time, and Space — 98
- 6.5 Political Considerations — 100
- 6.6 Human Agency or Lack of? — 101
- 6.7 Anthropocene and Human Agency — 103
- 6.8 Envisioning a Comprehensive Memory Studies Approach — 106

References — 109

Index — 124