

Table of Contents

Dynamics of the Arterial System

|                                                                                                                                                          |    |
|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
| D.H. Bergel                                                                                                                                              |    |
| Mechanics of the Arterial Wall in Health and Disease . . . . .                                                                                           | 3  |
|                                                                                                                                                          |    |
| M. Anliker, J.C. Stettler, P. Niederer and R. Holenstein                                                                                                 |    |
| Prediction of Shape Changes of Propagating Flow and Pressure Pulses in Human Arteries . . . . .                                                          | 15 |
|                                                                                                                                                          |    |
| E. Wetterer, R.D. Bauer and R. Busse                                                                                                                     |    |
| New Ways of Determining the Propagation Coefficient and the Visco-Elastic Behaviour of Arteries in situ . . . . .                                        | 35 |
|                                                                                                                                                          |    |
| N. Westerhof, G.C. van den Bos and S. Laxminarayan                                                                                                       |    |
| Arterial Reflection . . . . .                                                                                                                            | 48 |
|                                                                                                                                                          |    |
| R.H. Cox                                                                                                                                                 |    |
| Arterial Smooth Muscle Mechanics . . . . .                                                                                                               | 63 |
|                                                                                                                                                          |    |
| T. Kenner                                                                                                                                                |    |
| Models of the Arterial System . . . . .                                                                                                                  | 80 |
|                                                                                                                                                          |    |
| A. Schabert                                                                                                                                              |    |
| Separation of Time-Dependent and Time-Independent Terms in the Relation of Pressure and Diameter and of Pressure and Flow Velocity in Arteries . . . . . | 89 |
|                                                                                                                                                          |    |
| Y. Summa                                                                                                                                                 |    |
| Determination of the Tangential Elastic Modulus of Human Arteries In Vivo . . . . .                                                                      | 95 |

|                                                                                                                                                                          |     |
|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| C. Oddou, P. Flaud and D. GeigerModel of Nonlinear Viscoelastic Wall Rheology Applied to ArterialDynamics . . . . .                                              | 101 |
| D.L. Newman and S.E. GreenwaldValidity of the Moens-Korteweg Equation . . . . .                                                                                      | 109 |
| P. Sipkema and N. WesterhofTime Domain Reflectometry in a Model of the Arterial System . . . .                                                                       | 116 |
| A. KolinNew Approaches to Electromagnetic Measurement of Blood Flow andVasomotion Without Recourse to Surgery . . . . .                                          | 122 |
| Control Theory and Regulation                                                                                                                                 |     |
| O.H. GauerRegulation of Blood Volume . . . . .                                                                                                                       | 153 |
| E.O. Attinger and F.M.L. AttingerChanges in Blood Flow-Distribution During the Application of MultipleStresses . . . . .                                         | 162 |
| M.G. TaylorOptimality Principles Applied to the Design and Control Mechanisms ofthe Vascular System . . . . .                                                    | 181 |
| J. LutzAutonomic Vascular Responses in the Splanchnic Region . . . . .                                                                                               | 195 |
| H.R. Kirchheim and R. GrossResponse of Renal Blood Flow and Renal Sympathetic Nerve Activityto Baroreceptor and Emotional Stimuli in the Conscious Dog . . . . . | 203 |
| J. GroteCerebral Blood Flow Regulation Under the Conditions of ArterialHypoxia . . . . .                                                                         | 209 |
| K.P. Pfeiffer and T. KennerMinimization of the External Work of the Left Ventricle andOptimization of Flow and Pressure Pulses . . . . .                         | 216 |

Cardiovascular Dynamics and Coronary Arteries

W.R. Milnor
Influence of Arterial Impedance on Ventricular Function . . . . . 227

H. Reichel and K. Baumann
The Effect of Systolic Rise in Arterial Pressure on Stroke Volume and Aortic Flow . . . . . 236

M. Schöttler and J. Schaefer
Effect of Ventricular Pacing on Systolic Blood Pressure at Patients With Hypertension . . . . . 245

E. Rumberger, K. Baumann and M. Schöttler
Dependence of Peripheral Resistance on Heart Rate . . . . . 250

S. Hagl, H. Meisner, W. Heimisch, E. Gams, E. Struck and F. Sebening
Instantaneous Blood Flow Velocity Profiles After Aortic Valve
Replacement . . . . . 255

N. Talukder and H. Reul
Fluid Mechanics of Natural Cardiac Valves . . . . . 269

W. Meesmann, V. Wiegand, U. Menken, W. Komhard and U. Rehwald
Early Mortality Due to Ventricular Fibrillation, and the Vulnerability of the Heart Following Acute Experimental Coronary Occlusion: Possible
Mechanisms and Pharmacological Prophylaxis . . . . . 275

E. Bassenge, J. Holtz and W.v. Restorff
Direct Nervous Effects on Coronary Flow in Conscious Dogs . . . . . 285

Laudatio

T. Kenner
Laudatio für Herrn Professor Dr. E. Wetterer . . . . . 294

Subject Index . . . . . 301