

Contents

Acknowledgments.....	XI
A note on transliteration and names	XIII
Preface.....	1
Notes to the Preface.....	4
1 Afanasy Fet and his poetry.....	5
1.1 Introduction	5
1.2 Fet's education and the aesthetics of objectivity	9
1.2.1 Childhood, and Fet's early reading and writing.....	10
1.2.2 Formal schooling.....	12
1.2.3 What Fet took away from Werro	13
1.2.4 Poetry-writing in Werro	15
1.2.5 Schoolmates and later connections	16
1.2.6 To Moscow	16
1.2.7 Elective affinities: Fet and German literature in Moscow	17
1.2.8 "Diana"	22
1.3 Emotion, memory, and the photograph	28
1.3.1 Fet's evocation of consciousness, memory, and sense of time ..	29
1.3.2 "Leaning back in the armchair" and experiential metonymy.....	32
1.3.3 Trauma and memory in Fet.....	34
1.3.4 Fet's prose poetics and the nature of memory retrieval	35
1.3.5 Photography in Fet's prose	37
1.4 Pluralities of consciousness in the Fetian text	39
1.4.1 Two poems and their common autograph.....	39
1.4.2 Dating Fet's acquaintance with the works of Schopenhauer	43
1.4.3 Epigraph and autograph	45
1.4.4 The Central Star: Fet, astronomy, and Professor Mädler	47
1.5 Fet and the sciences of mind.....	52
1.5.1 What can Fet have known about psychiatry?.....	52
1.5.2 Fet's experience of psychiatric pathology.....	55
1.5.3 Fet's psychology and his contemporaries	57

VIII

1.6 A preliminary note on chronology and periodization	58
Notes to Chapter One	61
2 Seeing and knowing in Fet	101
2.1 Introduction	101
2.2 Representing objects: women, icons, and substantives	103
2.2.1 Three women and two paintings	108
2.2.2 Alien raptures: Fet's evasion of personality	116
2.2.3 Visual perception and Fet's poetry of things	117
2.2.4 From motion to emotion in Fet's poetry and poetics	123
2.2.5 Fet's noun poems	128
2.3 Fet's early hellenism and his poetics of architecture	136
2.3.1 From the Greek Anthology to Russian anthological poetry	138
2.3.2 Sculptural thematics and Fet's elegiac distich	139
2.3.3 Fet's anthological poetry in the context of his oeuvre	140
2.3.4 Two hellenizing poems	142
2.3.5 The senses and the imagination in Fet's anthological poetry	148
2.3.6 Fet's doors and windows	154
2.4 Representing subjects: observers, secrecy, and the idle spy	158
2.4.1 The poetry of self-deception	167
2.4.2 Play and mindplay	171
Notes to Chapter Two	176
3 Verse form and language in Fet's shorter poems	190
3.1 Introduction: the cultural evolution of form	190
3.2 Meter and rhythm	203
3.2.1 Translating rhythm: From "Auf dem See" to "Последняя любовь"	203
3.2.2 Russian meter and Fet's meters	212
3.2.3 Fet's repertory of meters	221
3.2.4 Polymetric compositions	237
3.2.5 Fet's canon of short original verse	239
3.2.6 Chronology in Fet's metrical repertory	240
3.2.7 Fet's use of metrical rhythm	250
3.2.8 Meter and rhythm: conclusions	261
3.3 Rhyme and its absence	262
3.4 Stanzaic structure and graphic form	281
3.5 Some notes on vocabulary, syntax, closure, and emotion	307
3.5.1 Vocabulary: adjectival usage across time	307
3.5.2 Poetic form and little words	313
Notes to Chapter Three	331

Postface	353
Note to the Postface.....	356
Abbreviations	357
Sources	359
Index of personal names.....	386
Index of poems.....	396
List of tables and charts.....	410