

Contents

First words	Why 'no-nonsense'?	7
The essay/dissertation/thesis	What makes writing 'academic'? Why is it wise to think of an essay as a debate, not a manifesto?	8
The title	Your title is best thought of, at least initially, as a question.	13
The Introduction		17
Defining your terms	Here you make a statement of intent: define ambiguous terms in your title;	17
Limiting your scope	place limits on the scope, or focus, of your essay;	20
Stating your position	and state your own (perhaps intuitive) position.	22
Describing your methodology	What data will you collect and how will you collect it and use it? Why did you make the choices you made?	23
The received opinion		25
Sources	Why is it good debating practice to give a fair account of the case you seek to counter? How do you judge the worthwhileness of your sources?	29
Note-making	How will you record what you find in the sources that you might want to make use of?	34

Quotation	How and to what extent will you quote from those sources?	36
References	And how will you signal what sources you have used within the text of your essay?	38
Your counter-argument		42
Evidence	Being aware of possible bias; what sort of evidence will you look for and use to support your case?	43
Examples	The need for relevant examples,	45
Facts	and dependable facts.	47
Conclusion	How tentative should your conclusion be? Might you have changed your mind in the course of your research? Awareness of possible alternative conclusions.	49
Summary diagram		53
A (short) sample essay	'Does the fact that we have a concept of evil mean that evil exists?'	54
Notes		58
Index		74