

Contents

Acknowledgements — VII

List of figures — XI

1 Introduction — 1

- 1.1 Subject and aim — 1
- 1.2 The form of Euclid's Elements — 13
- 1.3 The form of Euclid's Elements and clarity — 33
- 1.4 Clarity and/in (Greek) scientific texts — 36
- 1.5 Review of the literature — 55
- 1.6 Method and plan — 63

2 'Clarity' in the commentators of Euclid — 71

- 2.1 Plan of the chapter — 71
- 2.2 Review of the language of 'clarity' — 72
 - 2.2.1 The emphatic attribution of 'clarity'/σαφήνεια to Euclid in Pappus and Proclus — 72
 - 2.2.2 Nonemphatic occurrences of cognates of σαφήνεια — 75
 - 2.2.3 Alternative terminology of clarity — 85
 - 2.2.4 Summary of and conclusion from the review of the language of clarity — 96
- 2.3 The function of the language of clarity in the commentaries of Euclid's Elements — 98
 - 2.3.1 The commentary practice in the light of the language of clarity — 99
 - 2.3.2 The function and perception of Euclid's clarity — 101

3 Textual standardization in the propositions of Elements I — 108

- 3.1 Introduction — 108
 - 3.1.1 Method and corpus — 108
 - 3.1.2 Levels of the analysis of textual standardization — 114
- 3.2 Lexicon — 114
 - 3.2.1 Words — 115
 - 3.2.2 Phrases — 124
- 3.3 Grammar — 137
 - 3.3.1 Sentence constructions — 137
 - 3.3.2 Verb forms — 154
 - 3.3.3 'Formulae' reconsidered: the use(s) of ἔστω/σαν — 168
- 3.4 Structure — 175
 - 3.4.1 Proposition structure (microstructure) — 175
 - 3.4.2 Book structure (macrostructure) — 182

4 The standardization of lettered diagram and diagrammatization — 185

- 4.1 Diagrams I: the ancient evidence of diagrams for Euclid's Elements transmitted on papyri and ostraca — 187
 - 4.1.1 Overview of the ancient evidence and problematization — 188
 - 4.1.2 The relation of the text of the papyrus fragments to Euclid's Elements — 190
 - 4.1.3 A review of the diagrams of the ancient fragments — 199
 - 4.1.4 Synthesis of the results from the textual and diagrammatic analysis — 214
- 4.2 Diagrams II: the Byzantine diagrams for Euclid's Elements transmitted in the manuscripts — 216
 - 4.2.1 The position of the diagram in relation to the text — 218
 - 4.2.2 Drawing techniques — 222
 - 4.2.3 The use of letters in the diagrams of the manuscripts — 235
 - 4.2.4 A brief outlook on the standardization of the geometrical configuration of the manuscripts' diagrams — 237
 - 4.2.5 Conclusion — 239
- 4.3 Diagrammatization I: the 'textual construction' — 239
 - 4.3.1 Forms of diagrammatization — 240
 - 4.3.2 The 'constructing section' — 243
 - 4.3.3 The practicality of the textual construction — 249
 - 4.3.4 The functionality of the diagrammatic construction — 273
 - 4.3.5 Conclusion — 281
- 4.4 Diagrammatization II: the implications of the use of letters — 282
 - 4.4.1 The syntactical embeddedness of the letters — 283
 - 4.4.2 The alphabetical principle in the introduction and reuse of the letters — 284
 - 4.4.3 The specification of the letters — 305
 - 4.4.4 The order of the letters in multi-lettered 'letter words' — 339
- 4.5 Drawing directions in Ptolemy — 411

5 The relation of form and clarity in the Elements — 415

- 5.1 Standardization and 'logical' clarity — 415
- 5.2 Standardization and communicative clarity — 422
- 5.3 The meaning of the form and the role of clarity — 429

Bibliography — 435

General index — 443

Index locorum — 465