

Contents

Foreword	ix
Acknowledgments	xi
Chapter One
Introduction	1
The ethnographical collections	3
The methodology	6
Chapter Two
Kitawa Island	15
Kitawa and the kula ring	17
Kula in the Okabulula region	20
Kula in the Lalela region	22
Kula in the Kumwageiya region	24
The kula canoe and the carvers	26
Chapter Three
The initiator and the initiate	29
The rite of initiation	33
The vision in the dream	43
The apprenticeship	46
The taboos	52
Tokabitamu and tokataraki	56
The work of the carver	63
The death of the carver	66
Chapter Four
The technique of carving	71
The 'logical' mechanism of carving	77
Relationships between the schema and its model	90
Chapter Five
Synchronic analysis of the lagimu	99
An iconographic interpretation of the lagimu	104
Synchronic analysis of the tabuya	134

Chapter Six

An iconographical interpretation	147
--	-----

Chapter Seven

The colours of the lagimu and tabuya	159
--	-----

Chapter Eight

The aesthetic philosophy of Kitawa carvers	173
A philosophical explanation of the 'device of mirroring'	177
The carver as 'Creator of Images'	181
The power to create as a gift of the god-hero	183
The 'aesthetic ecstasis or rapture'	186
The definition of 'metaphor' among Kitawa carvers	190
How a symbolic metaphor is 'formed'	195
Why a carver needs metaphors	198

Conclusion	201
------------------	-----

Aesthetic Conversations	207
-------------------------------	-----

Nowau text	211
English text — free translation	265
Lexicon: Nowau-English	371
Lexicon: English-Nowau	379

Figures and maps	387
------------------------	-----

Bibliography	439
--------------------	-----

Index	449
-------------	-----