

5		Preface
7	Julia Menne, Mirco Brunner, Albert Hafner	Introduction
14	Hans Peter Hahn	Culture Contact, Intercultural Exchange, and Inequality: Some notes on conceptual approaches to cultural transfers
25	Ariane Ballmer	Wayfinding within and across frontiers. Local geography and mythical cosmography in the Alpine Bronze Age
41	Andreas Kotula	Connecting regions – The site of Dąbki and its role in Late Mesolithic and Neolithic networks in the 5th millennium BC
55	Caroline Posch, Michael Brandl	Frontiers or zones of interaction – North and South. Cross-regional influences in the lithic industries of the Mesolithic sites of Schneiderküren and Egg-Schwarzwasser in the Kleinwalsertal (Vorarlberg, Austria)
66	Eleonore Pape	A Matter of Perspective – Borders between France and Germany in the Late Neolithic
74	Emma Buckingham	Permeability and Mutability in Indigenous Sicilian Borderlands
89	Sergios Menelaou	Bounded by the sea: concepts of connectivity and mobility across the border zone of the eastern Aegean islands and western Anatolia during the third millennium BC
100	Julia Menne, Mirco Brunner	Frontier, Interaction Zone or Territory? Towards more complex models of borders and interactions
110	Laura Burkhardt	A goldmine on the fringe of the Mediterranean world – the Ada Tepe mine and its cultural interrelations in the Late Bronze Age
124	Margarethe Kirchmayr	Archaeology on the border between the Alps and the Alpine foothills. The district of Reutte (Tyrol/Austria) – A borderland from prehistory to today
135	Kai Radloff	Rethinking Borders in Archaeology: the Lower Rhine as a part of the ‘Frontiers of the Roman Empire’