

CONTENTS

List of Images	iii
Acknowledgments	iv
Introduction	1
Part I. Petrushka: Reality and Appearance in Petersburg and the Viennese Secession	6
1. Decomposing the Ego. Ernst Mach and the aesthetics of Hermann Bahr	8
2. Klimt and the concept of NUDA VERITAS	10
3. Arthur Schnitzler and The Green Cockatoo	21
Part II. White Domino: Bely's anthroposophy	29
A. Bely's anthroposophical aesthetics	30
B. The anthroposophy of Petersburg	42
1. The fall of the Dragon. Emancipation and alienation through intellect	43
2. Planetary incarnations, ancient cultures, the fourfold human body, and the threefold relationship between humans and the universe	46
3. Nothingness and the Expulsion from Paradise	56
4. The Second Self	58
5. Sacred Geometry	66
6. Perceiving the astral as a reverse to our world	71
7. Expansion of consciousness	73
8. Dionysus	75
9. The Kantian problem	79
10. Thought – forms	85
11. Spiritual guidance. Bath-Kol and the principle of Michael	88
12. The Christ-impulse	95
Part III. Cerebral play: The new view of the unconscious	101
1. Scoundrel. Freud's Interpretation of Dreams	106
2. Little Frog. Oedipus and Theseus. Patricide as an emblem of freedom	119
3. Pépp Péppovich Pépp. Carl Gustav Jung's theory of symbols	135
4. Petersburg. Ringstraße and the psychology of modern man. The City as a mother-imago	149
Modernity and the Quixotism of Petersburg. Bely's auctorial voice	169
Conclusion	174
Notes	177
Images	198
Bibliography	208
Index	217