

Table of Contents

0. Introduction
1. Covert Movement: Theoretical Background
  - 1.1 The Minimalist Program (Chomsky 1993-1995)
  - 1.2 Minimalist Inquiries (Chomsky 1998)
2. Different Predictions
  - 2.1 The Minimalist Program (Chomsky 1993-1995)
  - 2.2 Minimalist Inquiries (Chomsky 1998)
3. Examining the different predictions from section 2: checking of the Case feature of the direct object in Polish
  - 3.1 Problem: Genitive objects in negated sentences
    - 3.1.1 The data
    - 3.1.2 The assignment of Genitive of Negation in Polish: basic assumptions
  - 3.2 Problem: Genitive objects in sentences with more than one predicate
    - 3.2.1 Basic facts
    - 3.2.2 Problems
4. Biclausal properties of 'verb cluster' constructions
  - 4.1 Sentential negation effects
    - 4.1.1 Sentence negation versus constituent negation
      - 4.1.1.1 Position of the negative marker
      - 4.1.1.2 Genitive of Negation (GoN)
      - 4.1.1.3 (Co-)Occurrence of n-words
      - 4.1.1.4 Scopal ambiguity
      - 4.1.1.5 Partial conclusions
    - 4.1.2 The quality of negation occurring in 'verb cluster' constructions
    - 4.1.3 Partial conclusion
  - 4.2 'Two subjects' effects
    - 4.2.1 Antecedents for anaphors
    - 4.2.2 Control of po pijanemu
    - 4.2.3 Control of adverbial clauses
  - 4.3 Interim conclusion
  - 4.4 In defence of a PRO subject
5. Applying Chomsky's (1998) reasoning
6. Previous analyses (examples)
  - 6.1 A HPSG analysis (Przepiórkowski and Kupśé 1997a,b)
  - 6.2 A Minimalist analysis (Witkoś 1996, 1998, 1999)
  - 6.3 A Relational Grammar analysis: (Dziwirek 1998)
7. Conclusion
8. References