

CONTENTS

Part A :	INTRODUCTION	1
A 1 :	Opening the lens: Views of an 'end of the world'	2
A 2 :	Choosing a perspective: Origins of peasants and markets in Africa	9
A 3 :	Processing the material: Disparate snapshots and their synthesis	29
	3.1 The unit of study	29
	3.2 The sources	37
Part B :	ENTERING THE ATLANTIC WORLD	45
B 1 :	Gates between coast and interior (before c.1800)	49
B 2 :	The climax and end of slave exports (c.1800-1850)	59
B 3 :	Ivory, beeswax and new patterns of trade (c.1840-80)	62
B 4 :	The 'Rubber Delirium' (c.1880-1910)	78
B 5 :	By the roadside: Services for travellers	87
B 6 :	Conclusion Part B: A chronology of market integration	97
Part C :	THE REGIONAL ECONOMY: EXPANDING PRODUCTION AND LOCAL NEEDS	101
C 1 :	A prehistory of indigenous productive innovation	103
	1.1 Widening the choice: Early Bantu innovations (up to 1600 A.D.)	103
	1.2 Increasing the productivity: Innovations of the 17th and 18th centuries	108
C 2 :	Population and ecology - a changing balance	120
	2.1 A mosaic of ecosystems	121
	2.2 Ecology and food	123
	2.3 Regional sub-economies	130

C 3 :	Emerging divisions of labour	135
	3.1 The division by gender and age	135
	3.2 The division of knowledge	141
	3.3 The importance of regional trade	143
C 4 :	The means of export production	154
	4.1 The utility of the honeybee	155
	4.2 The ways of winning rubber	159
	4.3 The dangers of hunting elephants	166
	4.4 the technology of warfare	175
C 5 :	Adaptations in the regional food economy	181
	5.1 'By-products' of the export sector	181
	5.2 The changing economy of staple food	187
	5.3 'Relish' and 'cash crops'	196
	5.4 The value of livestock	201
	5.5 Changes in the regional division of labour	204
C 6 :	Use-values and currencies: the utility of imported goods	211
	6.1 Intoxicants	212
	6.2 'Ornaments'	218
	6.3 Textiles	223
	6.4 Imports as 'wealth'	232
C 7 :	Conclusion Part C: 'Subsistence' and 'surplus'	236
Part D :	THE SOCIAL CONTEXT: LABOUR, POWER AND EXCHANGE	243
D 1 :	'Owners' and 'villagers'
	1.1 Individual ownership	246
	1.2 Villagers' obligations	249
D 2 :	Sisters and wives
	2.1 Claims on labour	258
	2.2 Rights over food crops	260
	2.3 Demands for gifts and sexuality	265
	2.4 Women's autonomy	270
D 3 :	Children and slaves
	3.1 Paternal frustrations and avuncular authority	273
	3.2 Unreliable juniors	280
	3.3 Slaves as 'wives' and 'children'	285
	3.4 Authority and independence	293

D 4 :	'Strangers', neighbours and 'friends': the importance of non-kinship relations	295
	4.1 Types of inter-village relations	296
	4.2 The costs of inter-village relations	305
	4.3 The utility of neighbourhood: Cooperation, piecework and barter	313
	4.4 The benefits of friendship: credits and compensations	331
	4.5 The meanings of inter-village exchange	342
D 5 :	Chieftainship and trade
	5.1 Chiefs without power ?	345
	5.2 Chiefly revenues	350
	5.3 Politicians or entrepreneurs ?	363
	5.4 Power and accumulation	369
D 6 :	Conclusion Part D: 'Equity with growth' ?	371
Part E:	NEGOTIATING THE MARKET: RESIDENT PRODUCERS AND FOREIGN TRADERS	380
E 1 :	'Extortions, exactions and vexations'	381
	1.1 The language of legitimate demands	382
	1.2 The valuation of respect	385
	1.3 Hospitality and accusations	388
E 2 :	Business and trust	393
	2.1 Friendship sales	394
	2.2 Credit trade	396
	2.3 The scramble for allies	400
E 3 :	The right price
	3.1 The problem of currencies	406
	3.2 The ideology of fixed unit prices	409
	3.3 Bargaining on the price	417
E 4 :	Conclusion Part E: Changing moralities of exchange	412
Part F :	EPILOGUE	429

APPENDIX AND REFERENCES

Synopsis of travellers' reports on the Upper Zambezi and Kasai, 1794-1907	438
References
1. Oral sources	441
2. Written sources and bibliography	443

TABLES

Table 1:	Approximate population of the Upper Zambezi and Kasai by ethnic group (1940s)	30
Table 2:	'Legitimate exports' from Angola, 1780-1933 (only products of the interior, in metric tons)	64
Table 3:	Exports from Angola 1760-1908 (in current values)	80
Table 4:	Comparison of cassava with millets as staple crop	126
Table 5:	Productive activities around the Upper Zambezi by season and gender	139/40
Table 6:	The processing of kambungo (wild rubber)	122/23
Table 7:	The tasks of husband and wife (current village norms)	259
Table 8:	Typical elements of marriage payments among the Chokwe, Luvale and Southern Lunda	266
Table 9:	Composition of the banzo ('load'; standard unit of account in West Central African barter trade)	410

MAPS

Map 1 :	West-Central Africa before c. 1900	470
Map 2 :	Ecological zones in the Upper Zambezi and Kasai region	471/2
Map 3 :	Upper Zambezi and Kasai region, c. 1790-1910	472/3

FIGURES

Fig. 1:	Wooden chair of the Chokwe Chief Chipukungu	48
Fig. 2:	Indigenous carriers with foreigner in a hammock	51
Fig. 3:	Slave caravan in the interior, on the main 'watershed' route (1875)	58
Fig. 4:	'Angola caravan' (Chokwe ?) with ivory loads in the Congo (around 1900)	77
Fig. 5:	Ovimbundu pombeiros from Bihe (1891)	81
Fig. 6:	Armed Bihe caravan carrier, with typical load (1878)	89
Fig. 7:	Caravan camp on the main 'watershed' route (1875)	90
Fig. 8:	Food sales in a Mashukulumbwe village (1904-07)	95
Fig. 9:	Yowena Samakayi, an aged Luvale trader (1986)	100
Fig. 10:	Cassava (manioc) plant	109
Fig. 11:	Gate on a wálilo -dam for plain fisheries, with fishtrap	115
Fig. 12:	Luvale weaponry of local manufacture (1875)	118
Fig. 13:	Indigenous cassava cultivation system (1979)	128
Fig. 14:	The author of this book trying a fish trader's load (1985)	146
Fig. 15:	Chokwe beeswax hunters and beehive (1884/1878)	156
Fig. 16:	Processing carpodinus roots to extract wild rubber	161
Fig. 17:	Chokwe big game hunters' camp (1878)	167
Fig. 18:	A Chokwe hunter with muzzle-loader gun (1878)	171
Fig. 19:	A Luvale hunter with muzzle-loader gun (1985)	174
Fig. 20:	A mead or honeybeer brewer, with gathering of drinkers (Chokwe, 1878)	184
Fig. 21:	Chokwe chief with locally made brass crown (1900s)	219
Fig. 22:	Jimbe shell and medaillon made of it (1854)	221
Fig. 23:	Chief Kakenge and a slave (1895)	231
Fig. 24:	Small Southern Lunda village, surrounded by cassava plantations (1895)	252
Fig. 25:	Chokwe woman hoeing a young cassava field	263