

Contents

|          |                                                                                 |           |
|----------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| 1 | Introduction                                                             | 1  |
| 1.1      | Intuitionistic propositional logic IPL                                   | 2         |
| 1.2      | Kripke's interpretation of IPL                                           | 4         |
| 1.3      | Grzegorzczuk's interpretation of IPL                                     | 8         |
| 1.4      | The BHK interpretation of IPL                                            | 10        |
| 1.5      | Appendix: Derivations in sequent calculi                                        | 11        |
| 2 | Generalizations                                                          | 13 |
| 2.1      | Positive and negative information                                               | 13        |
| 2.2      | The fine-structure of information processing                                    | 16        |
| 2.3      | Critical remarks on the BHK interpretation of IPL                        | 18        |
| 2.3.1    | Ambiguity of the BHK interpretation                                             | 20        |
| 2.3.2    | The proper treatment of negation                                                | 22        |
| 2.4      | Examples                                                                        | 24        |
| 2.4.1    | Nelson's constructive systems $N^-$ and $N$                                     | 24        |
| 2.4.2    | Relevant implicational logic $R_3$                                              | 26        |
| 2.4.3    | Categorical logics                                                              | 28        |
| 2.5      | Appendix: Possible constraints on 'informational interpretation'                | 29        |
| 3 | Intuitionistic minimal and intuitionistic information processing         | 31 |
| 3.1      | Substructural subsystems of MPL and IPL                           | 31        |
| 3.2      | Some standard properties                                                        | 34        |
| 3.2.1    | Cut-elimination                                                                 | 34        |
| 3.2.2    | Decidability                                                                    | 38        |
| 3.2.3    | Interpolation                                                                   | 42        |
| 4 | Functional completeness for substructural subsystems of IPL       | 45 |
| 4.1      | The higher-level Gentzen calculus $G$                                           | 46        |
| 4.2      | Gentzen semantics                                                               | 48        |
| 4.3      | Functional completeness for ISPL                                         | 50        |
| 4.4      | Functional completeness for ISPL $_{\Delta}$ and MSPL $_{\Delta}$ | 54        |
| 4.5      | Digression: On the expressiveness of Categorical Grammar                        | 54        |
| 4.5.1    | Extended Lambek Calculus                                                        | 55        |
| 4.5.2    | Limitations                                                                     | 58        |

|          |                                                                                                                                                              |            |
|----------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|------------|
| 5 | Formulas-as-types for substructural subsystems of IPL                                                                                                 | 59  |
| 5.1      | The typed lambda calculus $\lambda_{/\wedge}$ . . . . .                                                                                                      | 59         |
| 5.2      | Encoding proofs in $ISPL_{/\wedge}$ . . . . .                                                                                                                | 62         |
| 5.3      | Cut-elimination in $PROOF_{ISPL_{/\wedge}}$ and $\beta$ -reduction in $\Lambda_{ISPL_{/\wedge}}$ as homomorphic images of each other . . . . .               | 63         |
| 5.4      | $\beta\eta$ -reduction in $\Lambda_{ISPL_{/\wedge}}$ as a monomorphic image of normalizing (cut)-free proofs . . . . .                                       | 66         |
| 5.5      | Encoding proofs in $ISPL_{/\wedge, \circ}$ . . . . .                                                                                                         | 68         |
| 5.6      | Encoding proofs in structural extensions of $ISPL_{/\wedge}$ . . . . .                                                                                       | 72         |
| 5.7      | Cut-elimination in $PROOF_{ISPL_{/\wedge, \circ}}$ and $\beta$ -reduction in $\Lambda_{ISPL_{/\wedge, \circ}}$ as homomorphic images of each other . . . . . | 74         |
| 5.8      | Appendix: Proof of strong normalization for $\Lambda_{/\wedge}$ wrt $\rightarrow_{\beta}$ and $\rightarrow_{\beta\eta}$ . . . . .                            | 77         |
| 6 | Constructive minimal and constructive information processing                                                                                          | 81  |
| 6.1      | Substructural subsystems of $N^-$ and $N$ . . . . .                                                                                                          | 81         |
| 6.2      | Cut-elimination, decidability, and interpolation . . . . .                                                                                                   | 86         |
| 6.3      | The BHK interpretation reconsidered . . . . .                                                                                                                | 89         |
| 6.3.1    | Ambiguity as providing degrees of freedom . . . . .                                                                                                          | 89         |
| 6.3.2    | The proof/disproof interpretation and its soundness wrt $COSPL_{\bar{\circ}}$ resp. $COSPL_{\circ}$ . . . . .                                                | 90         |
| 7 | Functional completeness for substructural subsystems of N                                                                                             | 93  |
| 7.1      | Disproofs as mirror-images of proofs . . . . .                                                                                                               | 93         |
| 7.2      | The higher-level Gentzen calculus $GN^-$ . . . . .                                                                                                           | 94         |
| 7.3      | Generalized Gentzen semantics . . . . .                                                                                                                      | 97         |
| 7.4      | Functional completeness for $COSPL_{\bar{\Delta}}$ . . . . .                                                                                                 | 100        |
| 7.5      | Functional completeness for $COSPL_{\Delta}$ . . . . .                                                                                                       | 105        |
| 7.6      | Digression: Negation in Categorical Grammar . . . . .                                                                                                        | 105        |
| 8 | The constructive typed <math>\lambda</math>-calculus <math>\lambda^c</math> and formulas-as-types for <math>N^-</math>                                | 107 |
| 8.1      | The typed $\lambda$ -calculus $\lambda^c$ . . . . .                                                                                                          | 107        |
| 8.1.1    | The syntax of $\lambda^c$ . . . . .                                                                                                                          | 107        |
| 8.1.2    | Models for $\lambda^c$ . . . . .                                                                                                                             | 110        |
| 8.1.3    | Intended models for $\lambda^c$ . . . . .                                                                                                                    | 112        |
| 8.1.4    | The canonical model and completeness . . . . .                                                                                                               | 113        |
| 8.1.5    | Completeness wrt intended models . . . . .                                                                                                                   | 115        |
| 8.2      | Formulas-as-types for $N^-$ . . . . .                                                                                                                        | 118        |
| 9 | Monoid models and the informational interpretation of substructural propositional logics                                                              | 123 |
| 9.1      | Monoid models . . . . .                                                                                                                                      | 123        |
| 9.2      | Informational interpretation . . . . .                                                                                                                       | 128        |
| 9.3      | Extension with (linear) modalities . . . . .                                                                                                                 | 134        |
| 9.4      | Dynamics of interpretation . . . . .                                                                                                                         | 136        |
| 9.5      | Slimos as an exhaustive format of abstract information structures . . . . .                                                                           | 138        |
| 9.6      | Appendix: Applications . . . . .                                                                                                                             | 140        |
| 9.6.1    | Monotonicity and paraconsistency . . . . .                                                                                                                   | 140        |

|                                             |            |
|---------------------------------------------|------------|
|                                             | IX         |
| 9.6.2 Negation in a formal system . . . . . | 141        |
| 9.6.3 Beth's Theorem . . . . .              | 144        |
| Bibliography                         | 149 |
| Summary                              | 156 |
| Index                                | 158 |