

Activities for Social-Emotional Learning – Contents

				Page
0	Introduction		Brief origins, why SEL matters, SEL in this book, creating conditions for SEL	7
1	Micro-strategies		Putting yourself first, compassionate class management, mindful check-ins, competence modelling, considerate eliciting, engaging with others, calming and focus strategies, empathic monitoring, empowering self-expression, providing thoughtful feedback	22
2	SEL activities for primary learners	Levels of example activities	Getting started on your journey to support primary learners' SEL.	34
2a	Managing my mind – mini booklet	A1 – A2	Students create a mini-booklet with calming strategies to manage emotions and regulate behaviour.	34
2b	My animal identity	A1 – A2	Students identify with an animal to explore emotions and traits, fostering self-awareness and understanding of others.	38
2c	Growing my mindset	A2 – B1	Students learn about growth mindset through a story, understanding the importance of persistence and learning from mistakes.	43
2d	Emotions through wordless storytelling	A1 – B1	Students explore emotions and perspectives through wordless stories and create personal stories promoting self-awareness and responsible decision-making.	47
2e	Worry monster	A1 – B2	Students manage their worries by drawing or writing them down and feeding them to a worry monster, encouraging self-reflection and mindful awareness.	52
2f	Practising perspective taking	A2 – B1	Students explore how different people can interpret the same situation in unique ways, fostering socio-cultural sensitivity and empathy through a collaborative storytelling activity.	57
2g	Mistakes are welcome	A2 – B2	Students reflect on the positive role of mistakes in learning, helping them develop self-management, empathy and an appreciation for growth from failure.	62
2h	Wall of fame	A1 – A2	Students create a "Wall of Fame" to share and compare their likes and dislikes, fostering an understanding of similarities and differences.	68
2i	Our bossy brain	A1 – B1	Through storytelling and drawing, students explore how different thoughts about the same situation can lead to varying feelings and actions, learning to manage unhelpful thoughts.	71

				Page
3	SEL activities for secondary learners	Levels of example activities	Getting started on your journey to support teenagers' SEL.	75
	3a Are you listening?	B1–B2	Students develop their communication skills through the use of specific language to express their opinions and active listening.	75
	3b I am me...	A1–B2	Students practise understanding and appreciating others' perspectives by discussing different viewpoints and asking for clarification, which fosters empathetic interactions.	80
	3c Strength spotting	A2–B1	Students identify and reflect on their own strengths and areas for growth to boost confidence and develop a growth mindset.	85
	3d Silent comics	B1–C1	Students analyse and create wordless comics to explore and discuss different perspectives and emotions, enhancing empathy and non-verbal communication skills.	88
	3e Making an impact	B2–C2	Students research a species affected by climate change and create a persuasive project to raise awareness and a call to action.	92
	3f You say what's happening?	A2–B1	Students evaluate various tricky situations, analyse the potential consequences of different actions, and make responsible decisions based on their values and the impact on others.	97
	3g Introducing positive psychology	B2–C1	Students explore positive psychology concepts through storytelling, discussion, and creative tasks.	101
	3h Nature poetry	B1–B2	Students write poetry inspired by nature to reflect on their emotions and enhance their creative expression.	108
	3i Sustainable living	B1–C2	Students explore and discuss sustainable living practices, create a personal action plan and reflect on how these practices can positively impact the environment and enhance their global identity.	113
	3j WOOP-ing wishes	B1–C2	Students set and visualise personal goals using the WOOP method, identify potential obstacles and create actionable plans to overcome these challenges, while reflecting on their learning.	117
	3k Holidaying with eco-empathy	B1–C2	Students will create an eco-friendly holiday presentation based on set criteria, targeting a specific audience and incorporating sustainable practices.	122
	3l The impact of video games on decision-making	B1–C2	Students analyse and discuss how video games influence decision-making and social behaviour, fostering critical thinking and responsible decision-making.	128

				Page
4	SEL activities for adults	Levels of example activities	Getting started on your journey to support adults' SEL.	132
4a	SEL wheel	B1–B2	Students reflect on their social-emotional competences, rate their strengths and growth areas, and use a self-assessment wheel to map out their personal development goals.	132
4b	Empathy box	B2–C1	Students analyse scenarios to identify underlying thoughts, feelings and intentions, and collaboratively create an "empathy box" to understand the real messages behind actions.	137
4c	The art of refusal	B2–C1	Students role-play various indirect ways to say "no" while exploring cultural differences in refusal strategies and maintaining politeness.	141
4d	The sound of silence	A2–C1	Students use silence as a communication tool in interviews to enhance listening skills and reflect on the impact of pausing before responding.	147
4e	AI ethics	B1–C1	Students analyse ethical scenarios involving AI to understand the implications for decision-making and social responsibility.	150
4f	Windows and mirrors	B2–C1	Students explore cultural differences through various activities to enhance self-awareness and understanding of diverse social practices.	154
4g	Building networks	B1–B2	Students practise and develop networking skills through role-playing and strategy discussions to enhance personal and professional relationships.	159
4h	Stress lanterns	B1–C2	Students explore and categorise their stressors into controllable, influential or uncontrollable types, and develop strategies to manage or release stress through a structured reflection.	164
4i	Building empathetic communication	B1–B2	Students practise empathetic communication through role-playing unusual situations, using the ECATO framework to respond with understanding rather than judgment.	169
	References			172