

Contents

Acknowledgements — VII

1	Introduction — 1
1.1	Overview — 1
1.2	The Pangkhua language — 1
1.2.1	Names and ISO codes — 1
1.2.2	Number of speakers, location, and geographical spread — 2
1.2.3	Neighboring languages — 4
1.3	Genealogical context — 6
1.3.1	Tibeto-Burman language family — 6
1.3.2	Tibeto-Burman languages in Bangladesh — 7
1.3.3	Pangkhua and Kuki-Chin — 7
1.3.4	Internal subgrouping of Kuki-Chin — 7
1.4	Previous studies on Pangkhua — 10
1.5	Home, ecology, and environment — 12
1.5.1	Land — 12
1.5.2	Home — 12
1.5.3	Subsistence — 13
1.5.4	Food and clothing — 14
1.5.5	Daily life — 16
1.5.6	Animals and plants — 16
1.6	Modern day sociocultural context — 18
1.6.1	Social organization — 18
1.6.2	Education — 18
1.6.3	Spiritual beliefs — 19
1.6.4	Pangkhua oral literature — 19
1.7	Historical information — 19
1.7.1	Evolution of the term “Pangkhua” — 19
1.7.2	Historical demographics — 20
1.7.3	Migration history — 21
1.7.4	Spiritual life — 22
1.8	Sociolinguistic profile of language endangerment — 22
1.8.1	Intergenerational language transmission — 23
1.8.2	Absolute and proportional number of speakers — 23
1.8.3	Loss of existing domains and response to new domains — 23
1.8.4	Materials for language education and literacy — 23
1.8.5	Governmental and institutional language attitudes and policies — 24
1.8.6	Community members’ attitudes towards their own language — 24
1.8.7	Amount and quality of documentation — 24
1.8.8	Summary of degree of endangerment — 24

1.9	Theoretical framework, data, and methodology —	25
1.9.1	Theoretical framework —	25
1.9.2	Data and methodology —	25
1.9.2.1	Data/Corpus —	25
1.9.2.2	Fieldwork and data collection methods —	26
1.9.2.3	Data processing methods —	27
1.10	Transcription and convention of indicating data sources —	28
1.11	Basic characteristics of Pangkhua —	29
1.11.1	Phoneme inventory —	29
1.11.2	Syllable structure —	29
1.11.3	Lexeme, affix, and clitic —	29
1.11.4	Monosyllabic —	30
1.11.5	Major word classes —	30
1.11.6	Minor word classes —	30
1.11.7	Morphological type —	31
1.11.8	Order of clause constituents —	31
1.11.9	Predicate structure —	31
1.11.10	Noun phrase —	31
1.11.11	Nominal morphology —	32
1.11.12	Person marking on verbs —	32
1.11.13	Clause —	32
1.11.14	Multiclausal constructions —	32
1.11.15	Nominalization —	33
1.12	Typologically notable characteristics —	33
1.12.1	Gap in phoneme inventory —	33
1.12.2	Sesquisyllabicity —	33
1.12.3	Disconnect between phonological word and grammatical word —	34
1.12.4	Absence of a clausal conjunctive —	34
1.12.5	Animacy hierarchy in argument marking on verbs —	34
1.12.6	The discourse functions of topic and definiteness markers —	34
1.12.7	Adjectival verbs —	35
1.12.8	Verb stem alternation —	35
1.12.9	Person marking from directional marking —	35
1.12.10	Multiple negation markers —	35
1.12.11	The verb ʔi ‘say’ as marking future —	36
2	Phonology —	37
2.1	Overview —	37
2.2	Segmental phonology —	37
2.2.1	Segmental phonology I: Consonants —	37
2.2.2	Segmental phonology II: Vowels —	45
2.2.3	Basic syllable structure —	50

2.2.4	Phonotactics —	51
2.2.5	Sesquisyllable —	51
2.2.6	Morphophonology —	53
2.3	Prosodic phonology —	57
2.3.1	Tone —	58
2.3.2	Phonological word —	63
2.3.3	Grammatical word —	70
2.3.4	Phonological word vs grammatical word —	72
2.3.5	Affix and clitic —	73
3	Word formation processes —	76
3.1	Overview —	76
3.2	Morphological units —	76
3.3	Word formation processes —	77
3.3.1	Monosyllabic root —	78
3.3.2	Multisyllabic stems —	80
3.3.3	Compounds —	88
4	Major word classes —	94
4.1	Overview —	94
4.2	Major word classes —	94
4.3	Establishing the basic word-classes: Noun and verb —	95
4.4	Word-class semantics: Nouns and verbs —	96
4.5	Noun —	98
4.5.1	Overview —	98
4.5.2	Semantic subclassification of nouns —	98
4.5.3	Modifying nominals —	101
4.5.4	Pro-forms —	114
4.6	Verb —	132
4.6.1	Transitivity —	133
4.6.2	The existential verb root am ‘exist’ —	144
4.6.3	The negative-existential verb bei ‘NEG.EXIST’ —	145
4.6.4	The abilitative verb root k^hau ‘ABIL’ —	146
4.6.5	The equative copular verb tsaŋ ‘cop’ —	147
5	Minor word classes —	148
5.1	Overview —	148
5.2	Minor word classes —	148
5.3	Adverbs —	149
5.3.1	Morphological adverbializer -kan ‘ADVR:MAN’ —	149
5.3.2	Lexical adverbs —	151
5.4	Interjections —	158

5.5	Coordinators & subordinators — 159
5.5.1	Coordinators — 159
5.5.2	Subordinators — 161
5.6	Discourse connectives — 162
5.6.1	hanintsun ‘then’ — 163
5.6.2	vanjintsun ‘because, then’ — 164
5.7	Referential markers — 164
5.8	Ideophones — 166
5.8.1	ǵǵk ‘instantly’ — 168
5.8.2	hǵk ‘entirely’ — 168
5.8.3	hǵp ‘completely’ — 168
5.8.4	kǵk ‘fully’ — 169
5.8.5	kʰǵp ‘extremely’ — 169
5.8.6	pǵp/pǵp/pǵp ‘sound of collision’ — 169
5.8.7	pǵt ‘completely’ — 171
5.8.8	pʰǵt ‘instantaneously’ — 172
5.8.9	tǵt ‘extremely’ — 172
5.8.10	tʰǵp ‘simultaneously’ — 172
5.8.11	zǵk ‘immediately’ — 173
5.8.12	zǵt ‘striking sound’ — 173
5.9	Onomatopoeia — 173
5.9.1	hambo ‘moo’ — 174
5.9.2	kʰǵlan kʰǵlan ‘sound of heavy footsteps’ and vǵt vǵt ‘sound of light footsteps’ — 175
5.9.3	reǵ ruǵ ‘heavy sound of something collapsing’ — 175
5.9.4	tǵk tǵk ‘sound of chicken crowing’ — 175
5.10	Reduplicative — 176
5.10.1	Functions of reduplications — 178
5.11	Intensifiers — 181
5.11.1	tsǵa ‘INT’ — 182
5.11.2	liǵk ‘INT’ — 183
5.11.3	Prosodic intensifiers — 183
5.12	Negators — 183
5.12.1	Declarative negator =lau ‘NEG’ — 184
5.12.2	The prohibitive (negative-imperative) mak ‘PROHIB’ — 185
5.12.3	Negative-emphatic markers — 185
5.12.4	Negative additive ua ‘NEG.ADD’ — 187
5.12.5	The discourse negation malǵu ‘DIS.NEG’ — 188
6	Predicate structure — 190
6.1	Overview — 190
6.2	Basic predicate structure — 190

6.3	Predicate stem —	190
6.3.1	Predicate stem types —	191
6.3.2	Verb stem alternation —	192
6.4	Position classes in the Pangkhua predicate —	199
6.4.1	Pre-root slots —	200
6.4.2	Post-root slots —	208
6.5	Other postverbal elements —	232
6.5.1	Polar question marker ma ‘PQ’ —	232
6.5.2	The discourse-episode marker ruah ‘EPIS’ —	233
7	Noun phrases —	235
7.1	Overview —	235
7.2	Proper name headed noun phrases —	235
7.3	Pronominal headed noun phrases —	239
7.4	Nominal headed noun phrases —	242
7.5	Noun phrase coordination —	248
7.5.1	Conjunctive NP coordination —	248
7.5.2	“List” NP coordination —	249
7.5.3	Disjunctive NP coordination —	250
7.6	Headless NPs —	250
8	Nominal morphology —	253
8.1	Overview —	253
8.2	Noun stems —	253
8.3	Pre-root morphology —	254
8.3.1	Possessive proclitics —	254
8.4	Post-root morphology —	255
8.4.1	Gender derivational formatives —	255
8.4.2	Augmentative -pui ‘AUG’ and diminutive -tɛ ‘DIM’ —	259
8.4.3	Possessive enclitic =tɔ ‘POSS:ALIEN’ —	260
9	Argument indexation on verbs —	262
9.1	Overview —	262
9.2	Argument marking and grammatical relations in Pangkhua —	262
9.3	Argument indexes —	265
9.4	Argument indexation on verbs in Pangkhua —	266
9.4.1	Argument indexation of 1 st person —	267
9.4.2	Argument indexation of 2 nd person —	268
9.4.3	Argument indexation of 3 rd person —	270
9.4.4	Plural object marker =ei ‘OBJ.PL’ —	271
9.4.5	Ditransitive constructions —	272
9.4.6	Argument marking deriving from directional marking —	273

9.5	Argument indexation and discourse-pragmatics —	275
9.5.1	Marking of agentivity —	275
9.5.2	Contrastive-emphatic focus —	276
9.5.3	Omission of argument indexes —	277
9.5.4	Foregrounding and change of syntactic positions —	278
10	Clauses —	279
10.1	Overview —	279
10.2	“Clause” in Pangkhua —	279
10.3	Clause dependency —	280
10.4	Basic information structure principles —	280
10.5	Clause-internal structures —	283
10.5.1	Appositive clauses —	284
10.5.2	Predicative clauses —	285
10.6	Speech act distinctions —	291
10.6.1	Declarative clauses —	291
10.6.2	Imperative clauses —	292
10.6.3	Interrogative clauses —	294
10.6.4	Hortative clauses —	303
11	Multiclausal constructions —	304
11.1	Overview —	304
11.2	Coordinated clauses —	304
11.2.1	Appositive coordination —	304
11.2.2	Marked coordinated clauses —	306
11.3	Adverbial clauses —	309
11.3.1	Time clauses —	310
11.3.2	Manner clauses —	312
11.3.3	Purpose clauses —	313
11.3.4	Conditional clauses —	314
11.3.5	Reason clauses —	314
11.3.6	Concessive clauses —	315
11.4	Complement clauses —	316
11.4.1	Reported speech finite complement clauses —	317
11.4.2	Non-reported speech finite complement clauses —	318
11.4.3	Non-finite complement clauses —	319
12	Nominalization and nominalization-based constructions —	321
12.1	Overview —	321
12.2	Pangkhua nominalizers —	321
12.3	“Phrasal” vs “Clausal” nominalizations —	322
12.4	Agentive nominalizations —	323

12.4.1	Agentive nominalizer -tu ‘NZR:AGT’	323
12.4.2	Agentive nominalizers -pa ‘NZR:M’ and -nu ‘NZR:F’	325
12.5	Action/event nominalization	326
12.6	Manner nominalization	326
12.7	Locative nominalization =na ‘NZR:LOC’	327
12.8	Framing nominalization =na ‘NZR:FRM’	328
12.9	Subject/object nominalization =mi ‘NZR.SUBJ/OBJ’	329
12.9.1	“Phrasal” nominalizations based on =mi ‘NZR.SUBJ/OBJ’	329
12.9.2	Clausal nominalization	332

Appendix A: Symbols and abbreviations — 335

Appendix B: Pangkhua sesquisyllabic words — 339

Appendix C: Pangkhua monosyllabic tonal minimal pairs — 343

Appendix D: Procedural text: Swidden cultivation — 345

Appendix E: Pangkhua folk story: Darskildar — 351

Appendix F: Glossary — 375

Appendix G: Metadata — 399

List of figures — 401

List of tables — 403

References — 407

Subject index — 415