Contents

Part I The Individual Ikigai

1 Ikigai—A Japanese Life Philosophy 3
1.1 Ikigai—an International Trend 4
1.2 Lexical Consideration of Ikigai (生き甲斐) 4
1.2.1 Iki 生き 5
1.2.2 Gai甲斐 6
1.2.3 Challenge in Translating the Term Into Other Languages 6
1.3 Ikigai in Cultural Context 7
1.3.1 Language as a Link between Perception and Culture 7
1.3.2 Japanese Culture Based on Hofstede's Model of Cultural Dimensions 8
1.3.3 Intra-cultural Aspects of Japanese Culture 14
1.3.4 Summary of the Cultural Consideration 17
1.4 Selected Modern Sources of Ikigai 21
1.4.1 Mieko Kamiya—Ikigai from a Psychological Perspective 22
1.4.2 Gordon Mathews—Ikigai from a Sociological Perspective 29
1.4.3 Héctor Garcia and Francesc Miralles—Living Healthy and Happy through Ikigai 34
1.4.4 Ken Mogi—Discovering One's Own Self 35
1.4.5 Yukari Mitsuhashi—Discovering the Importance of Everyday Life 36
1.5 Summary and Outlook—The Three Dimensions of Ikigai 38
1.5.1 Ikigai in Dependence on Context—Spirit of the Times, Life Phases, Private and Public 38
1.5.2 General Characteristics of Ikigai 40
1.5.3 The Individual Ikigai as a Spectrum 41
1.5.4 Ikigai and the Meaning of Life 42
References 43

Bibliografische Informationen
https://d-nb.info/1323462171

digitalisiert durch DEUTSCHE NATIONAL BIBLIOTHEK

2 The Meaning-Centered Mindset—Freedom and Responsibility 45
2.1 The Original Logotherapy as an Explanatory Approach for Ikigai 46
2.2 The Meaning of the Moment 47
2.2.1 The Types of Meaning in Original Logotherapy 47
2.2.2 The Moment 49
2.2.3 The Time Flow Model according to Frankl 51
2.2.4 The Meaning as a Quality Standard 53
2.2.5 Recognizing the Meaning: The Conscience 57
2.3 The Image of Man 59
2.3.1 The Human Being as a Whole 59
2.3.2 Man is a Spiritual Person 62
2.3.3 Noodynamics 64
2.3.4 Realization of Meaning through Value Realization 66
2.3.5 On the Relationship between the Individual and the Community 68
2.4 From Self-knowledge to Self-management 70
2.4.1 Self-Distancing and Self-Transcendence 70
2.4.2 Self-Actualization 72
2.5 Conclusion: The Meaning-Centered Mindset—Freedom in Responsibility 73
References 76

3 Ikigai—Vibrant Individuality 79
3.1 The Moment of Happening 79
3.2 Human as a Contributing Being 81
3.2.1 On the Concept of Competence 81
3.2.2 The Competence Area 84
3.2.3 The Will Area 85
3.3 The Will Area: The Levers of Ikigai 88
3.3.1 Search for Meaning Due to the Will to Meaning 88
3.3.2 Recognition of the Meaningful Possibility 89
3.3.3 Decision Based on a Meaning-Oriented Pro-motive 89
3.3.4 Unfolding Through Healthy Self-Forgetfulness 91
3.4 Ikigai leads to Personal Commitment 92
3.5 The Levers as a Model of Individual Ikigai 95
3.6 Conclusion: Ikigai—Vibrant Individuality 97
References 98

Part II The Organizational Ikigai

4 On the Necessity of a "Purpose-Based View" 103
4.1 Limitations of Previous Based-View Approaches 104
4.1.1 Perspectives of a Traditional Organizational Understanding 104

4.1.2 Limitations of a Military-Influenced Organizational Understanding ... 104
4.1.3 Limits of the "market-based view" and "resource-based view" ... 107
4.2 "Purpose-based view" as a Necessary Perspective for Organizations ... 110
4.3 Conclusion: The Purpose-Based View as the Starting Point of a Purpose-Driven Organization ... 112
References ... 113

5 Basic Considerations on the Organizational Ikigai ... 117
5.1 Basic Considerations on Organizational Ikigai ... 118
5.2 The Importance of Images of Man for the Management of Organizations ... 119
5.2.1 On the Existential Significance of Human Images ... 119
5.2.2 Digitization as a Catalyst for Dealing with Organizational Human Images ... 121
5.2.3 Digitalization and Purpose Consideration ... 123
5.2.4 On the Necessity of a Human Image Worthy of Humanity ... 125
5.3 The Image of the Individual Ikigai as the Basis of Management ... 126
5.4 Developing the Organizational Ikigai ... 129
5.4.1 The Learning Organization as a Control Loop of the Individual and Organizational Ikigai ... 129
5.4.2 The Management's View on Organizational Ikigai ... 131
5.5 Conclusion: On the Way to the Ikigai Organization ... 133
References ... 133

6 The Organizational Purpose ... 137
6.1 Purpose as the Link Between Individual and Organization ... 138
6.2 The Four Perspectives of the Organizational Purpose ... 140
6.2.1 The External-Collective Perspective: The Organization as a Place of Happening ... 142
6.2.2 The External-Individual Perspective: Employees as the Central Contact to the Outside World ... 143
6.2.3 The Intra-individual Perspective: Design of Work ... 145
6.2.4 The Inner-Collective Perspective: Culture and Communication ... 146
6.3 Four Important Effects of the Organizational Purpose ... 148
6.3.1 The Organizational Purpose Supports a Contemporary Understanding of Quality ... 148
6.3.2 The Organizational Purpose Provides Orientation ... 151
6.3.3 The Organizational Purpose Increases the Willingness for Change ... 153
6.3.4 The Organizational Purpose Promotes Organizational Development ... 154

6.4 Conclusion: Purpose-Fit and Purpose-Commitment 155
References 157

7 The Lived Values 159
7.1 Understanding of Values within the Framework of Organizational Ikigai 160
7.1.1 Distinguishing Between Values and Non-Values 160
7.1.2 The Value Ranges in the Work Context According to Böckmann 161
7.1.3 The Organization as a Community of Lived Values 163
7.2 Concretization of the Organizational Purpose through Lived Values 164
7.2.1 Perspectives of Lived Values 164
7.2.2 The Development of Lived Values in Organizations 166
7.2.3 Individual Meaning Finding in the Context of the Development of Lived Values 167
7.2.4 Strategic and Normative Classification of Lived Values 173
7.3 Conclusion: Lived Values as Levers of Strategic Management 174
References 175

8 The Logofocal Leadership 179
8.1 Basic Considerations 180
8.1.1 Understanding Leadership as Relationship Management 180
8.1.2 On Individual Performance 183
8.2 Considering the Wholeness of the Human Being 186
8.2.1 Focus 1: The Noetic Dimension 188
8.2.2 Focus 2: The Psychophysics 191
8.3 Perspectives of Logofocal Leadership 193
8.3.1 Leadership of Employees 194
8.3.2 Leadership from Below 196
8.3.3 Lateral Cooperation 196
8.3.4 Distribution of Individual Resources Across the Various Perspectives 197
8.4 Considerations on Leadership Communication 199
8.4.1 Organizational Co-creators and Enablers 199
8.4.2 Communication 200
8.5 Conclusion: Logofocal Leadership as a Lever of Operational Management 205
References 206

9 The Intentional Self-Leadership 211
9.1 On the Importance of Self-Leadership in the Organizational Context 211
9.2 Intentional Self-Leadership 213

9.2.1 Basic Considerations 213
9.2.2 The Intention at the Center of Self-Leadership 214
9.3 Intentional self-leadership promotes individual prioritization competence 219
9.4 Conclusion: Intentional Self-Leadership as a Lever of Elaborative Management 220
References 221