

1	Introduction	1
	References	9
2	The Basic Assumptions of Previous Economics	11
2.1	An Ideal-Typical Introduction to Economics	14
2.1.1	The Basics of Economics	14
2.1.2	The Basic Economic Principles	15
2.1.3	Scarcity and Efficiency	15
2.1.4	The Main Questions and Logic of Economics	16
2.1.5	The Technological Possibilities of a Society	16
2.1.6	The Three or Seven Basic Questions of Economics	17
2.1.7	Income and Distribution Issues	17
2.1.8	Gross Domestic Product	18
2.1.9	Economic Growth	18
2.1.10	Unemployment and Full Employment	18
2.1.11	Utility Maximization	19
2.1.12	(Perfect) Market, Market Equilibrium and Market Failure	19
2.1.13	Economics as the Science of Economic Activity	19
2.2	A Discussion of the Basic Assumptions of those Ideal- Typical Introductions to Economics by the Works Examined Themselves	20
2.2.1	Needs, Utility Maximization and the Homo Oeconomicus	20
2.2.2	Gross Domestic Product and National Accounting	23
2.2.3	Justice and Distribution Issues	25
2.3	A Critique of Current Economics by the Works Examined Themselves	27
	References	32
3	An Initial Interim Conclusion	33
	References	76

4 A Discourse-Analytical Examination of Some Basic Assumptions and Concepts of Economics	79
4.1 Work	79
4.2 Unemployment and Full Employment	90
4.3 Poverty, Human Needs, and the Subsistence Minimum	102
4.4 Poverty Alleviation	107
4.5 Gross Domestic Product (GDP) and National Accounts	118
4.6 Efficiency	127
4.7 Income, Performance, and Incentives	140
4.8 Justice, Fair Income Distribution and the Consequences of Inequality	150
4.9 Society and Democracy	160
4.10 Profit and Profit Seeking	167
4.11 Scarcity and Lack	175
4.12 Competition and Cooperation	187
4.13 Market and Exchange	194
4.14 Growth	204
4.15 Economy	213
4.16 Prosperity, A Good Life and the Image of Man in Economics . . .	223
References	230
5 A Second Interim Conclusion	235
5.1 The Terms and Basic Assumptions of Economics, Their Definition, Their Origin, and Use	236
5.2 Empirical, Statistical and Historical Data and Facts	242
5.3 The Economic Method of Gaining Knowledge	257
5.4 Argumentation and Justification, Evidence and Proof	269
5.5 The Scientific Discourse and the Theory Discussion in Economics	276
5.6 Interdisciplinarity and General World Knowledge in Economics	280
5.7 The Economic Model of the Economic Cycle	286
References	293
6 Summary	295
6.1 Economics as Pseudoscience	295
6.2 Economics as Ideology	301
References	305
7 Outlook	307
References	309