

Contents

1	Introduction	1
2	The European Union’s Budgetary Policy—Instruments and Structures	7
2.1	The Instruments	10
2.1.1	The Multiannual Financial Framework and its Legal Implementation	10
2.1.2	The Own Resources Decision	17
2.1.3	The EU’s Annual Budgets	22
2.1.4	Other Budgetary Principles	24
2.1.5	Interim Conclusion: A Complex Web of Instruments and Actors	26
2.2	The Revenue Side—The European System of Own Resources	27
2.2.1	The Categories of Own Resources	34
2.2.2	Special Rules and Rebates	39
2.2.3	Interim Conclusion: Lack of Budgetary Autonomy	41
2.3	The Expenditure Side and the Largest Expenditure Blocks	42
2.3.1	The Largest Expenditure Block—The Common Agricultural Policy (CAP)	46
2.3.2	The European Cohesion Policy	54
2.3.3	Interim Conclusion: Unilateral Priorities and Limited Volume	65
2.4	The Pivotal Conflict—The Net Payment Logic	66
2.5	Necessity and Ability to Reform	73

3	The European Union's Previous Budgetary Negotiations	85
3.1	The Characteristics of the Budget Negotiations	88
3.1.1	The Central Actors of the Negotiations	89
3.2	The First Multiannual Financial Framework—The Delors I Package	96
3.2.1	The First Negotiating Phase: The Commission's Proposal	97
3.2.2	Second Phase: The Negotiations in the Council	101
3.2.3	The Third Phase: The Agreement with the European Parliament and the Regulated Adjustment of the Financial Perspective	106
3.2.4	Conclusion	108
3.3	Continuing the Successful Concept — The Delors II- Package . . .	109
3.3.1	The First Phase: The Package of the European Commission	110
3.3.2	The Second Phase: Known Conflicts in the Council	112
3.3.3	The Third Phase: A Strengthened European Parliament . . .	116
3.3.4	Necessary Adaptation because of Enlargement	119
3.3.5	Conclusion	120
3.4	The Third Package of European budgetary Negotiations - the Agenda 2000	121
3.4.1	The First Phase: The Comprehensive Communication of the EU Commission.	122
3.4.2	The Second Phase: Difficult Negotiations in the Council on the Agenda 2000- Package	128
3.4.3	The Third Phase: The Involvement of the European Parliament	137
3.4.4	Conclusion of the Agenda 2000 Negotiations	141
3.5	The Financing of Eastward Enlargement and the Adaptation of the Financial Framework	142
3.6	The Fourth Multiannual Financial Framework of the EU 2007–2013	151
3.6.1	The First Phase: The Proposal of the EU Commission . . .	152
3.6.2	The Second Phase: the Negotiations of the Member States	156
3.6.3	The Third Phase: Negotiations with the European Parliament	163

3.6.4	Conclusion	168
3.7	The Negotiations on the 2014–2020 Financial Framework	171
3.7.1	The First Phase: The Proposal of the European Commission	172
3.7.2	The Second Phase: The Negotiations between the Member States in the Council	184
3.7.3	The Third Phase of Negotiations: A New Role for the European Parliament	194
3.7.4	Conclusion	199
3.8	The Brexit and its Consequences for the EU Budget	199
3.8.1	The Final Account for the Withdrawal	200
3.8.2	Possible Contributions of the United Kingdom to the Participation in EU Programmes After Brexit	203
3.9	The Negotiations on the Financial Framework for 2021–2027—Fundamental Change as a Result of the Covid 19-Pandemic	205
3.9.1	The MFF Negotiations until the Outbreak of the Pandemic in March 2020	206
3.9.2	The Negotiations after the Outbreak of the Covid 19-Pandemic	215
3.9.3	Conclusion: The Long-term Consequences of the Historic Summit Compromise	226
4	Germany's interests and goals in European budgetary negotiations	229
4.1	Interests and Goals of the Central Actors	233
4.2	“Paymaster”, “milk cow” or “golden goose”—The Development of German Net Payments	238
4.3	The European Budget Negotiations in the Domestic Debate	245
4.3.1	The “Generosity” of the Early Years—The Delors—packages	245
4.3.2	Increased Budgetary Discipline and Domestic Political Polarisation—the Agenda 2000 Negotiations	250
4.3.3	Strict Budgetary Discipline and the Magical 1% Margin—Negotiations on the MFF 2007–2013 and the MFF 2014–2020	257

4.3.4	Fundamental Change in Position—Negotiations During the Covid19-Pandemic on the MFF 2021–2027	271
4.4	Conclusion—between Disciplinarian and Paymaster	279
5	Conclusions and Perspectives	283
	References and Documents	291