

Table of Contents

Merethe Roos

Education, National Identity, and Religion in the Twentieth and Twenty-First Century: The Diversity of Three European Nations — 1

Norway

Karl Christian Alvestad

The Middle Ages and the Papacy in Norwegian Education 1860–1939 — 19

Hege Roll-Hansen

The Meaning of a Christian Education: Priests, Pedagogues, and Politicians Negotiating the Norwegian Curriculum — 37

Merethe Roos

Towards a New Understanding of Education: Perspectives on the Debate of the Purpose clause for the Norwegian Schools around 1960 — 55

Jørn Varhaug

The Norwegian White Paper “Identity and Dialogue,” 1995, as Part of Gudmund Hernes’s Reform Strategies — 73

Sweden

Johan Wickström

The Transition from Paganism to Christianity in History Textbooks from 1900 to 1930 — 91

Emma Hellström

Christian Education and the Creation of Democratic Citizens: Presentations of Christianity in Swedish Textbooks during the 1930s and 1940s — 109

Janne Holmén

Social Democracy, Confessional Pluralism, and Value Indoctrination: Swedish Textbooks on Christianity and Religion, 1945–1974 — 131

Henrik Edgren

Post-Christian Perspectives in Swedish Upper Secondary School Textbooks 1990–2018 — 151

The Netherlands

Sjaak Braster

From National School to Societal Pillar: The Secularization of Public Education in the Netherlands (1801–1920) — 173

John Exalto

Bridge between Tradition and Situation: Titus M. Gilhuis and the Changes in Confessional Education in the Netherlands, 1945–1985 — 201

Tina van der Vlies

History Textbooks as Discursive Mediators: The Case of Dutch Tolerance, 1920–1990 — 223

Paul Vermeer

Religious Education as Latent Secularization in the Netherlands: An Analysis of Two Contemporary and Widely Used Textbooks — 245

Mette Buchardt

Epilogue: Textbooks as a Prism for the Politics of Secularization and “Cultural Heritage” — 269

Author presentations — 279