

Contents

Preface — VII

Introduction: Self and Sensibility — 1

I The Seventeenth-Century Background: From Locke to Hume

1 Personal Identity — 13

- 1 The ‘Ontological’ View of the Self: Scholastic and Cartesian Conceptions — 16
- 2 Personal Identity, Moral Responsibility, and Life After Death — 28
- 3 Locke’s Theory and Some of Its Critics — 36
- 4 Leibniz — 49
- 5 The Eighteenth-Century Debate — 54

2 Hume on the Self and His ‘Overall Philosophical Scheme’ — 57

- 1 Hume on the “Science of Man” and the Mind as a “Bundle or Collection of Different Perceptions” — 57
- 2 Hume’s Appendix and a “real continuity of mind or self” — 63
- 3 Psychology, Not Metaphysics — 66
- 4 Hume’s Account of the Self and the Limits of His Empiricism — 69

II The Feeling of Self: From Claude Buffier to Rousseau

3 From Intimate Sentiment to Pure Self-Consciousness: Buffier and Lelarge de Lignac — 73

- 1 Introduction — 73
- 2 Buffier on Intimate Sentiment and Kinds of Truths — 75
- 3 The Feeling of Self and the Consciousness of Perceptions: Buffier and Lignac — 79
- 4 Buffier on Intimate Sentiment and the Diachronic Identity of the Self — 83
- 5 Lelarge de Lignac vs. Buffier and Locke: The Sens Intime of Personal Identity — 86
- 6 Conclusion — 91

- 4 Self and Sensibility: From Locke to Condillac and Rousseau — 93
 - 1 Introduction: Locke on sensibility and the self — 93
 - 2 Étienne Bonnot de Condillac: the "sentiment of our being" and the self as phenomenon and as substance — 97
 - 2.1 Consciousness as sensibility and reminiscence — 97
 - 2.2 The "sentiment of our being" and the recognition of our own identity — 100
 - 2.3 Is Condillac a bundle theorist of the mind? — 103
 - 2.4 The origin of self-consciousness — 106
 - 2.5 The self and the sense of touch — 108
 - 3 Rousseau on the sentiment de l'existence and the self — 109
 - 3.1 Varieties of self-love and sentiments of existence — 109
 - 3.2 Sentiment de l'existence as self-awareness — 112
 - 3.3 The sentiment of existence and identity: Rousseau and Buffon — 114
 - 3.4 Rousseau on the active forces of the self — 118
 - 4 Conclusion — 120
- 5 Between Leibniz and Locke: Charles Bonnet on Self-Consciousness and Personal Identity — 123
 - 1 Introduction — 123
 - 2 Consciousness and Self-Consciousness — 125
 - 3 Physical and Moral or Personal Identity — 128
 - 4 Memory-based Personal Identity and Reflection-based Personal Identity — 133
 - 5 First-Person and Third-Person Perspectives on Personal Identity — 135
 - 6 Conclusion — 140

III Self-Consciousness and Personal Identity in Eighteenth-Century Materialism

- 6 Locke in Göttingen — 145
 - 1 Introduction — 145
 - 2 Feder-Meiners-Hißmann – and "Locke's Method" — 146
 - 3 "Lacking Precise Knowledge of Locke's Essay" — 150
 - 4 Feder and Locke on the Nature of the Soul — 153
 - 5 Feder and Locke on the "Favourite Topic of the English Metaphysicians" — 157

- 6 Meiners, Hißmann and Locke on the Mind and Personal Identity — 161
- 7 Conclusion: Locke between Feder and Meiners/Hißmann — 165

- 7 Varieties of Inner Sense. Two Pre-Kantian Theories — 166
 - 1 Historical Background and Terminological Questions. Inner Sense, Reflection, and Selbstgefühl: from Locke to Meiners and Hißmann — 168
 - 2 Apperception, the Feeling of the Nature of Ideas, and Selbstgefühl — 173
 - 3 Inner Sense and Forms of Self-Consciousness — 175
 - 4 Inner Sense and Personality — 179
 - 5 Conclusion — 183

- 8 Locke and Eighteenth-Century Materialist Conceptions of Personal Identity — 187
 - 1 Materialist Adaptations of Locke: Collins and Priestley — 188
 - 2 Materialist Critique of Locke: Thomas Cooper and ‘the non-necessity of identity toward future existence’ — 194
 - 3 Conclusion — 202

- 9 Religion and materialist metaphysics: Some aspects of the debate about the resurrection of the body in eighteenth-century Britain — 204
 - 1 The seventeenth-century background — 206
 - 2 Locke and his early eighteenth-century critics — 209
 - 3 Materialist accounts of bodily resurrection: towards the ‘non-existence’ and ‘non-necessity’ of numerical identity — 213
 - 3.1 From numerical identity to ‘specific identity’: William Coward — 214
 - 3.2 Resurrecting numerical identity: Priestley’s synthesis of Bonnet, Watts, and Locke — 216
 - 3.3 The ‘non-existence’ of identity and the ‘non-necessity’ of identity for the resurrection: Thomas Cooper — 222
 - 4 Conclusion — 226

IV Consciousness and Common Sense

- 10 Consciousness and Common Sense: From Claude Buffier to Thomas Brown — 231
 - 1 Introduction — 231
 - 2 Common Sense and Consciousness as sentiment intime: Buffier — 233
 - 3 Kames (and Beattie) and “Original” Self-consciousness — 237
 - 4 Reid and Stewart on Consciousness and Self-consciousness — 240

- 5 Conclusion: Thomas Brown and Necessary Conditions of Self-consciousness — 246

11 Reid and Higher Order Theories of Consciousness — 248

- 1 What is Consciousness? — 248
- 2 Reid, Locke and Leibniz on Consciousness and Reflection — 250
- 3 Reid and Consciousness as a Higher Order Operation — 255

V Kant in Context 1: Consciousness and Self-Consciousness

12 Between Wolff and Kant: Mérian's Theory of Apperception — 263

- 1 Mérian — 264
- 2 Wolff on Consciousness of Objects and Consciousness of Self — 267
- 3 Mérian and the Immediacy of Self-Consciousness — 270
- 4 Mérian and Rousseau's Question — 273
- 5 Mérian and Tetens — 275
- 6 Mérian and Kant — 278

13 Experience and Inner Sense: Feder–Lossius–Kant — 282

- 1 Inner Sense and Inner Experience — 282
- 2 Feder on Inner Sense and the Fundamental Faculty of Selbstgefühl — 284
- 3 Feder on Selbstgefühl and “the distinct thought of the self” — 289
- 4 Selbstgefühl as “preceding all experience”: Lossius — 292
- 5 Kant: From Inner Sense as “a fundamental faculty” to Apperception — 296
- 6 Conclusion — 300

14 Kant and Tetens on the Unity of the Self — 302

- 1 Tetens on Inner Sense, Consciousness and Selbstgefühl — 306
- 2 Tetens on Apperception and the Consciousness of Objects — 307
- 3 Tetens on the Unity of the Self and Selbstgefühl — 309
- 4 Tetens on the Unity of the Self as Appearance and as Substance — 310
- 5 Tetens's Conceptions of Unity and Kant — 314

15 Consciousness, Inner Sense and Self-Consciousness in the 1760s — 319

- 1 Introduction — 319
- 2 Consciousness as Inner Sense — 320
- 3 Consciousness as Opposed to Inner Sense, and the Search for

- ‘Fundamental Faculties’: Crusius and Kant — 323
- 4 The Notion of a ‘Basic Consciousness’ as Self-Consciousness: Crusius and Simonetti — 329
- 5 Consciousness and Self-Consciousness: Kant in the 1760s and Beyond — 333

VI Kant in Context 2: Personhood and the Feeling of Self

16 The Concept of a Person in Eighteenth-Century German Philosophy: Leibniz – Wolff – Kant — 339

- 1 Introduction — 339
- 2 Leibniz on Persons and Substances — 340
 - 2.1 Individuals — 340
 - 2.2 Persons and Personal Identity — 343
 - 2.3 Personhood, Immortality, and Moral and Legal Responsibility — 345
- 3 Christian Wolff on Personhood and Immortality — 347
 - 3.1 Personhood and Consciousness — 349
 - 3.2 Animal Souls, Human Souls, and Personhood — 354
 - 3.3 Personhood, Morality, and Immortality — 356
- 4 Kant on Personhood and Identity — 358
 - 4.1 Animals, Humans, and Personhood — 359
 - 4.2 Apperception and Personhood I: Theoretical Philosophy — 362
 - 4.3 Apperception and Personhood II: Practical Philosophy — 367

17 The Critique of Rational Psychology — 373

- 1 Kant’s Target — 373
- 2 The First and Second Edition Versions of the Paralogisms — 374
- 3 Logical Subject versus Substantial Subject — 376
- 4 Logical versus Substantial Simplicity of the Subject — 378
- 5 Materialism, Spiritualism, Immaterialism — 380
- 6 Logical versus Substantial Identity of the Subject — 381
- 7 The Thinking Subject and the Existence of External Objects — 383
- 8 From Rational Psychology to Empirical Psychology — 384
- 9 From Logical Subject to Moral Subject — 386
- 10 Conclusion — 387

XIV — Contents

18 Priestley and Kant on Materialism — 389

- 1 Psychological materialism — 390
- 2 Consciousness of mental states and consciousness of unity — 393
- 3 Unity and simplicity — 395
- 4 Unity and materiality — 397
- 5 Spiritual matter and a common ground of spirit and matter — 400
- 6 Materialism as metaphysics and as method: “physical” and “transcendental hypotheses” — 402

19 Between Empirical Psychology and Transcendental Philosophy:
Ernst Platner on the Feeling of Self — 406

- 1 Introduction — 406
- 2 Consciousness of Representations: Wolff – Reinhold – Platner — 408
- 3 Consciousness of Existence — 412
- 4 Consciousness of Personality: The Embodied Nature of the Self — 413
- 5 Selbstgefühl: The Feeling of Self — 416
- 6 Logical Subject and Real Subject: Platner and Kant — 420
- 7 Immortality and Imputation — 425
- 8 Concluding Remarks — 427

Bibliography — 429

Acknowledgments — 459

Index of Names — 461