

Contents

Acknowledgements VII

Abbreviations X

Editorial Note XIII

1 Introduction 1

2 'World Revolution', the Bolsheviks and Soviet Society 46

1 Bolshevik Internationalism through the World War and Revolution 46

2 1918/19, 1923, 1926: Three World-Revolutionary 'Windows of Opportunity' in Their Soviet Reflection 57

2.1 1918/19: The Conflagration in Central Europe 57

2.2 1923: The Phantom of the 'German October' 75

2.3 1926: Solidarity by Decree: The British General Strike 89

3 Activists and the Charisma of World Revolution 104

1 Activists, Opportunists and Functionaries: Types of Early Soviet Political Actors 104

2 The World Revolution as a 'Delightful Thing' 126

3 Communist World Society or Russian Domination? Activists Imagine the Future 142

4 Internationalist Practices I: Charisma and Activism between the Revolution and NEP 172

1 Informing, Performing and Intervening: Public Speech about the World Revolution 172

2 Internationalist Greeting Messages and Their Authors 186

3 The Bolshevik Provincial Press: From Activist Mouthpiece to 'Mass' Newspaper 206

5 Internationalism and the Soviet 'Masses' 234

1 Ways and Means of Transmitting Internationalist Knowledge 234

1.1 Expectations and Lines of Argument 234

1.2 The Instrumentarium of Agitprop 244

2 Reactions of the 'Masses': Disinterest, Resistance, Appropriation 267

6 MOPR: The Institutionalisation of International Solidarity in the obshchestvennost' 289

7	International Practices II: Activism and obshchestvennost' from NEP to Stalinism	334
1	Donations and Fundraising: Class Solidarity, Philanthropy and Entertainment	334
2	Objects and Subjects of 'Shefstvo': Comparing Two Types of International Sponsorship	358
3	Internationalist Pen Pal Correspondence – Collective and Individual	385
4	Banners Wanted: The Twists and Turns of International Flag Exchange	409
5	Dealing with Comrades from Abroad: Foreign Representatives of the Labour Movement in the Soviet Union	435
8	A Practice Forestalled: Going Abroad for the World Revolution	465
9	Concluding Remarks	481
	Bibliography	501
	Index	564