

Contents

Preface — VII

List of Figures — XV

Part I: Now and Then: From the Present to the Past and into the Future

Roderick Beaton

Civilisation or Civilisations? New Contexts for the Ancient Greek Achievement — 3

Richard Hunter

Another Journey: Odysseus and the Future of Greek Studies — 11

Margalit Finkelberg

Julian's School Law, Cultural Capital, and the Future of Classics — 23

Hans-Joachim Gehrke

The Ancient World: Past, Present, and Future of Europe — 35

Part II: Intertextuality and Interdisciplinarity

Edith Hall

The Iliad's Pre-Echoes of Future Apocalypse — 53

Bernhard Zimmermann

On the Reception of Friedrich Nietzsche's Die Geburt der Tragödie aus dem Geiste der Musik in German-Language Philology and Literature — 73

Therese Fuhrer

On the Concept of 'Slow Reading' in Latin Language and Literature — 81

Sophia Papaioannou

Reflective Discourse and the Augustan Paradigm: The Origins of Modern Critical Debate — 95

Part III: Patterns of Politics and “Socio-Culture”

Michael B. Cosmopoulos

The Mycenaean Legacy: Patterns of State Formation in Western Civilization — 115

Simon Goldhill

The Future of Classics: The Cost of Forgetting — 135

Douglas Cairns

Hubris, Ancient and Modern — 155

Tonio Hölscher

On the Powers and Dangers of Collective Identity: History in the Mirror or through the Window? — 175

Part IV: New Stances, New Perspectives

Antonios Rengakos

Classical Studies (Altertumswissenschaft) in the Anthropocene — 201

James I. Porter

Philologies of the Present for the Future — 213

Jürgen Paul Schwindt

Philology in Motion: The Future of Classical Studies and the ‘Philological Turn’ — 235

Richard Janko

The Future of the Classical Past — 257

Part V: Language, Linguistics and Philology

Franco Montanari

The Language and Culture of Ancient Greece in Today’s World — 271

Daniel Kölligan

The Future of the Past: From Regional Studies to Human Heritage
Research — 283

Wolfgang de Melo

Re-establishing Communication Between Linguists and Classicists:
A Philologist's Plea — 301

Georgios K. Giannakis

“The Future of the Past”: Historical and Comparative Linguistics as Partners of Philology — 317

List of Contributors — 347

Index Locorum — 351

General Index — 353