

Contents

Acknowledgements IX

Abbreviations XI

Introduction 1

PART 1

The Young Max Weber and Imperial German Politics: Between the Crisis of Liberalism and the Challenge of German Social Democracy (1884–1891/2)

- 1 The Young Weber's Diagnosis of the Political Situation in Imperial Germany (1884–5) 21
 - Introduction 21
 - 1 German Liberalism after 1878: Between the 'Greek Gift' of Universal Suffrage and Anti-Socialist Repression 23
 - 2 The 1884 Reichstag Elections and the Emerging Role of German Social Democracy 29
 - 3 The Crisis of the Liberal Parties and the 'Right-Wing Turn' of National Liberals in 1884 34
- 2 Hermann Baumgarten and the Young Max Weber: The Ambiguous Legacy of National Liberalism 42
 - 1 A Direct Conduit to the Dilemmas of the German Liberal Bourgeoisie 42
 - 2 German Liberalism, a Self-Critique: National Liberalism's Foundational Manifesto of 1866 44
 - 3 'Realpolitik' and Positivism 50
 - 4 'Realpolitik' as Ideology 55
- 3 The Webers and the 'Social Question': The German Bourgeoisie's 'Patriarchal' and Gendered Engagement with the Contradictions of Modern Class Society 62
 - 1 Contextualising Helene Weber's Influence in Max Weber's Development 62
 - 2 The Reign of the Bourgeois: Local Administration and the 'Social Question' in the German Lands until the 1880s 66

- 3 Max Weber Sr.'s Patriarchal Engagement with the 'Social Question' in the Berlin Metropolis 70
- 4 Monarchical Convictions and Christian Philanthropy: Helene Weber's Social Engagement 74
- 5 The 'Social Question' and National Liberal Legacy 77
- 4 Outgrowing National Liberalism (1887) 81
 - 1 From Political Commentator to Historical Actor 81
 - 2 A Balance Sheet of Liberal 'Realpolitik': Reflecting On the Kulturkampf amidst a Ramp Up of Repression against Socialists 83
- 5 Witness to the End of an Era: The 'Three-Kaiser Year', Mass Strikes and Bismarck's Fall (1888–1891/2) 94
 - 1 Introduction 94
 - 2 Taking Stock of Bismarck's Legacy amongst the Berlin Masses 95
 - 3 Weber's Generation Confronts a Liberal Camp Divided between Opportunists and Fundamentalists 97
 - 4 The Resurgent Working Class: The Ruhr Miners' Strike of 1889 and the Expansion Of State Social Policy 102
 - 5 After the Sozialistengesetz: The 1890 Elections and the Fall of Bismarck 108
 - 6 1891: Assessing a New Political Reality 111
 - 7 Conclusion of Part 1: 'The Existence Of Social Democracy ... Is Truly a Bliss' 113

PART 2

Max Weber's Laboratory: The 'Rural Labour Question' and the Genesis of Weberian Social Thought (1892–4)

- 6 Contextualising Max Weber's Dialogue with German Social Democracy: The Debate on the Worker as a Political Actor from the Pre-1848 Period to 1890s Imperial Germany 119
- 7 Social Science Takes On Social Conflict: The Stakes behind the Surveys on the 'Rural Labour Question' in 1890s Imperial Germany 130
 - 1 Introduction 130
 - 2 Two Surveys on the 'Rural Labour Question': Establishing a Manageable Basis for Comparison 134

- 3 The Debate on the Need to Involve Workers Directly in the Surveys 136
- 4 Subjectivity and Social Change: Weber's Call To Engage Workers' Standpoint (... Indirectly) 144
- 5 In Search Of Workers' 'Ethical-Ideal Drivers' 146
- 6 The Methodological (and Political) Implications of Protestant Ministers as Sources 149
- 7 The Verein Questionnaires under Social Democrat Scrutiny 152

- 8 Social Research, Agrarian Change, and the Question of Workers' Vantage Point: The Genesis of Max Weber's Social Theory in His Engagement with the 'Rural Labour Question' 156
 - 1 Max Weber and Paul Göhre: The Issue of Workers' 'Rightful' Claim to Recognition and the Spectre of Social Democracy 156
 - 2 The Breakdown of 'Patriarchal Relations' in the German Countryside and the Changing Makeup of Its Rural Working Class 167
 - 3 'The Heavens and the World Market': Agrarian Capitalism and the Growing Social Divisions in the German East 171
 - 4 The 'Psychological Factor': Max Weber's Early Conceptualisation of the Immanent Logic of Social Processes 175
 - 5 Conclusion: Workers' Standpoint and the Genesis of Weber's Social Theory 185

- 9 The Standpoint of 'State Reason' vs. the Standpoint of the Working Class: Max Weber's Squares Off with Social Democrats on the 'Rural Labour Question' 188
 - 1 Introduction 188
 - 2 Two Generations of Political Economists Take On the 'Labour Question' 189
 - 3 Max Weber Debates Karl Kaerger On the Role of Worker Subjectivity in the 'Rural Labour Question' 198
 - 4 'Let's Leave That for Workers Themselves to Sort Out!': Social Democrats' Critical Approach to the 'Rural Labour Question' 205
 - 5 The 'Standpoint of State Reason' as the Young Max Weber's Compromise between Partisanship and Objectivity 211
 - 6 Conclusion: The Imperative to Defend German Kultur: Max Weber between Worker Self-Consciousness and the Legacy of 'Prussianism' 215

PART 3

Imperialism and the Nexus of Class, Race and Culture in Max Weber's Early Thought (1894–8)

- 10 Between a Global Standpoint and a Normative Concept of Culture:
Max Weber on Labour, 'Cultural Difference' and the World
Market 231
- 1 The World Market as an Inescapable Reality 231
 - 2 Max Weber's Global Standpoint on Social Conflict and
Two-Pronged Understanding of Culture in the 1890s 235
 - 3 The Labour-Culture Nexus in Max Weber's Early Thought 244
 - 4 Culture, Race and Labour: The Genesis of Weber's Cultural Approach to Economic Activity and Its Contradictions 248
 - 5 Class and Cultural Difference in Weber's Engagement with Workers' Standpoint 254
 - 6 Conclusion: Xenophobia as Legitimate Class Consciousness?
Weber's Critique Of Social Democrats' 'Dream of Racial and Cultural Equality' 262
- 11 Breaking the 'Solidarity of All the Ruled': Culture and Imperialism
in Max Weber's Solution to the 'Labour Question' 266
- 1 Introduction: Max Weber between the Liberal Brentano and the Socialist Engels 266
 - 2 Imperialism and the Labour Aristocracy: Looking Towards Britain with Engels as Mediator 270
 - 3 Fordism as Fate? Weber's Two-Staged Understanding of Social Conflict in the 'Factory System' 279
 - 4 Conclusion: A Matter of (Worker) Conscience: The Role of Ideals and Kultur in Facing the Challenge of Social Democracy 290
- Epilogue: The Late Max Weber and the Problem of the Non-existing Alternative to Capitalism 309
- Bibliography and Sources 327
- Index 339