

Contents

Otto Latva, Heta Lähdesmäki, Kirsi Sonck-Rautio and Harri Uusitalo

Introduction – The Human Relationship with the Changing Biodiversity — 1

Part I: Belonging and Non-Belonging

Otto Latva, Kirsi Sonck-Rautio and Aino Jämsä

1 “It is Like Diving in a Pea Soup”: The Development of the Relationship between Humans and Blue-Green Algae in Finland in the Twentieth and Twenty-first Centuries — 19

Sonja Åman

2 Entangled Endangerments: “Revitalising the Gray Whale and its Hunt” — 43

Yota Batsaki

3 Franklinia Alatomaha: Here and Gone in the Anthropocene — 65

Heta Lähdesmäki

4 Negotiating Belonging in Multispecies Cities: Rats, Birds and Humans as Neighbours in the City of Helsinki — 85

Part II: Emotions

Elina Valovirta

5 Love and Loss: Corals and Cultural Sustainability in Caribbean Popular Romance Novels — 109

Hannu Salmi

6 The White-Tailed Eagle on the Brink of Extinction in Twentieth-Century Finland: A Digital Approach to Emotional Responses in the Media — 127

Tracie L. Wilson

- 7 Emotions of Contested Migrations: The Return of the Wolf across the Polish-German Border — 151

Part III: Environmental Policy

Małgorzata Zofia Kowalska

- 8 Nature Conservation as a More-Than-Human World: From Managerial to Ecological Thinking — 177

Teja Šosterič

- 9 Blow It Up for the Birds: Neoliberal Protection in Franzen’s Freedom — 195

Emile Bellewes

- 10 Shallow Sustainability as Progressive Environmental Policy: An Ecolinguistic and Ecofeminist Reading of the Swedish Environmental Protection Agency’s 2018 Wildlife Strategy Report — 215

Index — 241