

Table of Contents

0	Introduction	9
0.1	A wide world	10
0.2	Questions	13
0.3	Epic	14
0.4	Genre	17
0.5	The goal	17
1	Beginnings of Greek epic poetry	19
1.1	Homer	19
1.2	The text	19
1.3	Change of medium	21
1.3.1	Oral poetry	21
1.3.2	Written form	22
1.3.3	Achievements of the written form	23
1.4	The audience	25
1.5	The first epics	27
1.6	Iliad	27
1.6.1	Contents	27
1.6.2	Structure	31
1.6.3	Characteristics	32
1.6.4	Troy and the question of sources	33
1.7	Odyssey	35
1.7.1	Contents	35
1.7.2	Structure	37
1.8	Reception history	38
1.9	Hesiod	39
1.9.1	Theogony	40
1.9.2	Works and Days	42
1.9.3	The epic poet as "moralist"	43
2	Hellenistic epic poetry	45
3	The beginnings of Roman epic poetry	47
3.1	Greek influences in the pre-literary period	47
3.2	The findings	48
3.3	The problem	49
3.4	Procedure	50
3.5	Inventory and localisation of oral literature	51
3.6	Additions to the "Sitz im Leben"	54
3.7	Crystallisation nuclei of the transcription process	55
3.8	Epics	57
3.9	Changes in the overall system of literary communication	60
3.10	The performance of the written epic	64

Table of Contents

4	Developments in the second and first centuries BC	69
4.1	Ennius	69
4.1.1	Person and work	69
4.1.2	Annales	69
4.1.3	Context	70
4.2	The further Roman development	71
4.3	Rome	73
5	Catullus	75
6	The ancient didactic poem: Lucretius	77
6.1	Expository poetry	77
6.2	The Epicurean	77
6.3	Overview	79
6.4	Statement	80
7	Virgil's Aeneid	83
7.1	Biography	83
7.2	Basic decisions	83
7.3	Contents	85
7.4	Reception	86
7.4.1	Virgil and the history of European literature	86
7.4.2	Contemporary reception	87
7.5	Performance	91
7.5.1	The main character of the Aeneid is Virgil	92
7.5.2	The subject of the Aeneid is contemporary Rome	93
7.5.3	Not an operation of the gods but of men in the Aeneid	94
7.5.4	The Aeneid is not an epic of heroes, but of proletarians	95
8	Ovid	97
8.1	Reception	97
8.2	About the person	97
8.3	Metamorphoses : A first approach	99
8.4	Augustan epic	100
8.5	The Metamorphoses as an epic parody	101
8.5.1	Metamorphoses	102
8.5.2	Grand epic	103
8.5.3	Systematisation	103
8.5.4	Action guidance	104
8.5.5	Ovid and his predecessors	104
8.5.6	Narrative in the epic	105
8.5.7	Individual motifs	106
8.5.8	Living parody	106
9	Historical epics of the early imperial period	109
9.1	History in Greek	109
9.2	Latin epics	110
9.3	Lucan	113

9.4	Pharsalia	115
9.4.1	Title and sources	115
9.4.2	Contents	116
9.4.3	Agenda	120
9.5	Silius Italicus	123
9.6	Outlook	125
10	Mythological epic	129
10.1	Greek epics and didactic poetry	129
10.2	Valerius Flaccus	131
10.3	Statius	133
10.3.1	About the person	133
10.3.2	Thebaid : Contents	134
10.3.3	Composition	135
10.3.4	Uniformity	137
11	The late antique epic	141
11.1	Overview	141
11.1.1	Historical overview	141
11.1.2	The literary-historical turning point	144
11.1.3	Clarification 1: Christianity	144
11.1.4	Specification 2: Epyllia	145
11.1.5	Relativisation: Greek epic poetry	146
11.1.6	Development strands	146
11.2	Panegyric-historical poetry	148
11.2.1	General information	148
11.2.2	Claudius Claudianus	149
11.3	Christian poetry	150
11.3.1	Initial phase	150
11.3.2	Main phase	155
12	Epilogue	157
	Selected bibliography	159
	Index	169