

Contents

Foreword — V

Preface — VII

Introduction — XIX

The Authors — XXIII

Keynote

Ravi Menon

Two Forces shaping the financial and monetary Order — 1

I. How the Financial Sector evolved during “Low for Long” and what Factors will drive Future Evolution

Douglas Elliott and Umit Kaya

How the new Monetary Order could impact Financial Services — 11

Elizabeth McCaul

Beyond “Low for Long” – charting the Future Course of the Financial Sector — 33

Wim Mijs

Is Bank Consolidation an Opportunity or a Necessity? — 41

II. How will Monetary Policy evolve

Gaston Gelos

Macroprudential Policy and Financial Stability — 47

Martin Mühleisen

Monetary Policy in Times of Uncertainty — 55

Andreas Dombret and Oliver Wunsch

Navigating the new Monetary Order in Europe — 65

III. How should Regulation and Supervision change

Nathalie Aufavre

We don't need another Framework, we need more of this one — 83

Margarita Delgado

Stress Testing our post great Financial Crisis Reforms in 2023 — 91

Martin J Gruenberg

Lessons learned from the U.S. regional Bank Failures of 2023 — 105

Randal K Quarles

Keep Calm and Carry On: Some Developments in Banking Regulation, 2022–2023 — 113

Elke Koenig

Evolution, not Revolution: how should Regulation and Supervision change — 123

Lorenzo Bini Smaghi

Banking Union, ten Years after — 131

IV. How will the Banking Sector evolve

James von Moltke

From Building Resilience to Enabling Growth — 143

Pier Carlo Padoan

Banking Union, Crises and Eu Integration — 149

Christiana Riley

Banking and Private Credit: Competition, Cooperation, Risk and Regulation — 159

Britta Schmidt

Higher Returns, lower Valuations: Key Bank Investor Debates in the new Monetary Order — 167

V. How will the Nonbank Financial Sector evolve

Martin Moloney

Leveraged Investors & Financial Market Dysfunction:
The Financial Stability Challenge — 181

Barbara Novick

Non-Bank Financial Intermediation is a Net Positive for Financial Stability — 233

Patrick Kenadjian

Who's afraid of Private Debt, and should we be? — 245

VI. Conclusion

Barry Eichengreen

Silicon Valley Bank and all that: Lessons from March 2023 — 277