

Contents

Aura Heydenreich, Florian Klaeger, Klaus Mecke, Dirk Vanderbeke, Jörn Wilms

Introduction: Writing the Heavens — 1

I The Middle Ages

Maximilian Wick

Mirari faciunt magis hec quam scire: Ways of (Not) Understanding the Cosmos in Johannes de Hauvilla's Architrenius — 15

Sophie Knapp

Between Nigromancy and Erudite meisterschaft: Astronomical-Cosmological Knowledge in Middle High German Sangspruchdichtung — 35

Walker Horsfall

Astronomical (In)accuracy in Heinrich von Mügeln's Der meide kranz — 51

Daniel Könitz

The Astronomical Treatise Von den 11 Himmelssphären and Its Relation to the Iatromathematisches Hausbuch — 69

II The Sixteenth and Seventeenth Centuries

Helge Perplies

Heavenly Theater: Writing about Astronomy and Astrology in Jean Bodin's Démonomanie des sorciers — 95

Agata Starownik

Astronomy for the Public — 109

Gábor Kutrovátz

Anatomical Descriptions in Star Catalogues: Ptolemy, Brahe, Halley, and Hevelius — 135

III The Long Eighteenth Century

Hania Siebenpfeiffer

Imagining the Extra-Terrestrial ‘Other’ in Early Modern Literature — 159

Alexander Honold

Celestial Education — 181

Reto Rössler

The End of ‘Heavenly Writing’, or: Speech of the Dead Christ down from the Universe That There Is No God (1796) — 203

IV Early Modern China

Gianamar Giovannetti-Singh

Chinese Heavens in European Literatures, c. 1650–1700 — 225

Andrea Bréard

“Heavenly Patterns” and Everyday Life in a Nutshell: Astronomy in Pre-Modern Chinese Handy Encyclopaedias — 245

List of Contributors — 271

Index of Names — 277