

Table of Contents

I Methods

R.A.H. King (Berne)

Introduction — 3

G.E.R. Lloyd (Cambridge)

Models for living in ancient Greece and China

A supplementary note on methodology and aims — 21

Ralph Weber (Basel)

On Comparing Ancient Chinese and Greek Ethics: The tertium comparationis as Tool of Analysis and Evaluation — 29

II China

Paul R. Goldin (Pennsylvania)

The Consciousness of the Dead as a Philosophical Problem in Ancient China — 59

Guo Yi (Seoul)

The Ideas of Human Nature in Early China — 93

Dennis Schilling (Munich)

Cosmic Life and Human Life in the "Book of Changes" — 117

Christoph Harbsmeier (Oslo)

Good Fortune and Bliss in Early China — 145

Elisabeth Hsu (Oxford)

Bing*-distress in the Zuo zhuan: the not-so-good-life, the social self and moral sentiment among persons of rank in Warring States China — 157

Michael Nylan (Berkeley)

Pleasures and Delights, Sustaining and Consuming — 181

III Greece and Rome

William Charlton (Edinburgh)

Is the Concept of the Mind Parochial? — 213

Jörg Hardy (Berlin)

Taking Thoughts about Life seriously

The existential dimension of Socratic Inquiry in Plato's Apology — 227

Richard Stalley (Glasgow)

Filial Piety in Plato — 247

Hua-kuei Ho (Chinese Culture University Taipei)

The Good Life for Plato's Tripartite Soul — 265

Thomas Buchheim (Munich)

Good counsel and the role of logos for human excellence

On the rhetorical anthropology of "the measure of all things" — 281

Michael Erler (Würzburg)

Hedonê in the Poets and Epicurus — 303

IV Comparisons

Lisa Raphals (Riverside and Singapore)

Autonomy, Fate, Divination and the Good Life — 321

R.A.H. King (Berne)

Mencius and the Stoics – tul and olkelôsis — 341

Lee H. Yearley (Stanford)

The Role and Pursuit of the Virtue of Equanimity in Ancient China and Greece — 363

Index locorum — 387

General index of subjects — 395