

Contents

Preface — IX

1 Introduction — 1

- 1.1 Mapping the “Life-spirit” Symbol in Tillich’s System — 2
- 1.2 Tillich’s Mystical Experience of Nature and his Intellectual Heritage — 11
 - 1.2.1 Nature Mysticism — 11
 - 1.2.2 Dialectic Attitudes towards Mysticism — 14
- 1.3 Tillich’s Ecological Theology: A Review — 17
- 1.4 Pneumatology and Ecology — 20
 - 1.4.1 Spirit and Field — 21
 - 1.4.2 The Creator Spirit — 25
 - 1.4.3 Feminine Spirit — 28
 - 1.4.4 The Wounded Spirit — 33
 - 1.4.5 Pentecostal Ecological Theology — 34
- 1.5. Reopening an Ecological Pneumatology — 36

2 Pneumatological Theology — 40

- Introduction — 40
- 2.1 Experience in Theologizing — 43
- 2.2 Christological Correlation — 46
- 2.3 From Logos Christology to Spirit-Christology — 52
- 2.4 Reconsidering the Theology of Spiritual Community — 56
- 2.5 Towards a Trinitarian Pneumatological Perspective — 58
- 2.6 A Pneumatological Theology of the History of Religions — 61
 - 2.6.1 “New” Systematic Theology? — 63
 - 2.6.2 Pneumatology as the Final Answer — 66

3 Spirit and the World — 72

- Introduction — 72
- 3.1 Spirit-Movements and Theologies of Experience — 72
 - 3.1.1 Medieval and German Mysticism — 74
 - 3.1.2 Radical Reformers — 77
 - 3.1.3 Schleiermacher — 80
- 3.2 God as Spirit — 82
 - 3.2.1 Schelling’s Naturphilosophie — 84
 - 3.2.2 Spirit as the Third Potency — 89

3.3	Spirit and the Nature — 93
3.3.1	Multi-dimensionality — 93
3.3.1.1	Boundary in Crossing — 93
3.3.1.2	Ontological Structure — 96
3.3.1.3	Multi-dimensional Structure — 101
3.3.2	Ecstatic Naturalism — 109
3.3.2.1	Ecstasy and Self-transcendence — 109
3.3.2.2	Self-transcending Realism — 111
3.3.3	Pneumatological Sacramentality — 112
3.3.3.1	Nature as Sacrament — 112
3.3.3.2	Pneumatological Protest and Gestalt — 119
4	Persons and Nature — 123
4.1	Reciprocity — 123
4.1.1	Life Structure and Elements — 123
4.1.2	Life Actualization — 126
4.1.2.1	Organic Life and Biology — 127
4.1.2.2	Life-Category and Historical Dimension — 133
4.1.2.3	Animality and Humanity — 136
4.2	Microcosm — 142
4.2.1	Freedom — 143
4.2.2	Infinity — 145
4.2.3	Spirit — 147
4.3	Reconsider the Dimensional-Hierarchical Metaphor — 148
5	Towards a Theonomous Technology — 153
	Introduction — 153
5.1	Modernity and the Nature Lost — 154
5.1.1	Paradigm shifts in the Renaissance — 154
5.1.2	The Nominalist Origin — 160
5.2	Divine-Demonic Ambiguity of Technology — 164
5.3	Rational-Cultural Ambiguity of Technology — 171
5.4	Theonomous Reorientation of Technology — 176
5.4.1	The Existential Roots — 176
5.4.2	Theonomous Culture — 177
5.4.3	Kingdom of God and Technological Utopia — 179
5.4.4.	Pneumatological Healing — 187

6	Environmental Ethics in Dialogue: Tillich, Orthodox Theology and Confucianism — 191
	Introduction — 191
6.1	Christian Sacramentality and Confucian Cosmogony: — 192
6.1.1	Tillich's Pneumatological Sacramentality — 192
6.1.2	Orthodox Cosmic Liturgy — 195
6.1.3	The Confucian Cosmogony — 197
6.2	Cosmic Anthropology: Microcosms, Mediator and the Great Man — 199
6.2.1	Human Being as Microcosms: Tillich — 199
6.2.2	Man as Mediator of the Cosmos: Orthodox Anthropology — 201
6.2.3	Great Man in Confucianism — 203
6.3	Environmental Ethics in Dialogue — 205
7	Conclusion — 207
	References — 210
	Tillich's Works — 210
	Research on Tillich — 213
	Other references — 216
	Name Index — 223
	Subject Index — 224