

Contents

Acknowledgements	9
1 Theoretical Previews	11
1.1 Ralf Vogt – Zeitgeist and Trauma Memory	11
1.2 Winja Lutz – The Reality of False Memories	15
The History of the False Memory Syndrome Foundation	15
Research paradigms	19
Shaw and Porter’s Rich-False-Memories Study	20
Loftus’ Lost-In-The-Mall Study	24
Conclusions	26
1.3 Ralf Vogt – The SPIM 30 Concept of Beseelbare Symbolization Media to Resolve Severe Transference Problems in Dissociative Trauma Disorders	30
Introduction	30
Exploring Transference Media for the Treatment of Trauma	30
Further Fields of Application of Beseelbare Therapy Media and Outlook	35
1.4 Ralf Vogt – The Previous SPIM-30-Orientation	37
1.5 Ralf Vogt – The Psychodynamic Transformation	43
Case vignettes of how traumatic data are coded in memory	45
Case vignettes on how trauma data are decoded in the mind	48
Conclusions from all data conversion processes	52
1.6 Ralf Vogt – Classification of Psychodynamic Data Qualities of Memories in Dissociative Psychotrauma Clients	54
2 Various Clinical Contributions to the Analysis and Treatment of Trauma Memory	61
2.1 Renée Potgieter Marks – The Frozen Child: The Process of Memory Recall in Children with Complex Trauma and Dissociation	61
The Case Example of Jake	61

	Powerful Body Responses and No Memory	62
	Beseelbare Objects	64
	Memory recall	67
	Activation and Integration	73
	The Case Example of Lee	74
	Summary	78
2.2	Valerie Sinason – Time and Memory and DID	79
	Introduction	79
	Categories of Dissociative Dialogues	83
	Other Societal Reasons that Impact Memory	86
	The Role of Fairbairn	89
	The Moral Defence - In work with Children and Adults with an Intellectual Disability	91
	Final Statement	95
2.3	Joanne H. Twombly – Case of a Woman with Complex DID and a History of Inadequate Treatment	96
2.4	Kevin J. Connors – On Memory and Dissociative Process	107
	Introduction	107
	The Case Example of Andrew	107
	Implications for Therapy	113
2.5	Irina Vogt – Remembering Prenatal and Birth Trauma - A Case Ex- ample - DESNOS	116
2.6	Ralf Vogt – The Shamed Prince – A Case Example – DESNOS	123
	First Phase of Therapy	123
	Middle Phase of Therapy	123
	Interpretation	125
	Last Phase of Therapy	125
	Interpretation	126
2.7	Ralf Vogt – Dissociative Late Discovery – A Case Example – DDNOS	128
	First Interpretational Framework and Therapy Phase	128
	Middle Phase of Therapy	129
	Interpretation	129
	Last Therapy Phase	130
	Interpretation	130
2.8	Ralf Vogt – The Weak Troublemaker – A Case Example - DID	132
	First Phase of Therapy	132
	Middle Phase of Therapy	132
	Last or Third Phase of Therapy	134
	Interpretation	135

3	New Research Results on Trauma Memory	137
3.1	Ralf Vogt – Pilot Study Excerpts on Trauma Memory through a Client Survey	137
	Preliminary note	137
	Study Excerpts	139
	Summary	148
4	New Contributions to the Treatment Model SPIM 30	151
4.1	Ralf Vogt – Neurophysiological and Psychodynamic Regulation stages of Interaction and their Implications for Therapeutic Relationship Building and Memory Work	151
4.2	Ralf Vogt – Attachment-Oriented Reform Approaches for Psychotraumatology	173
	Trauma Attachment Styles	173
	Victim attachment style (VA)	177
	Perpetrator attachment style (PA)	177
	The Oscillating Victim Perpetrator Attachment Style (OscA)	178
5	Appendix	181
5.1	Selection of photographs showing SPIM-30-Settings	181
5.2	Author Index	194
5.3	List of References	197
5.4	Accessing SPIM 30	206