

Table of Contents

Foreword
by Christian Kaufmann 9

Family Tree 10

1 Introduction 13

Sources 14

Acknowledgements 22

2 Grottkau, Frankenstein, and Reichenbach, 1882–1900:

Family background and education 25

The Silesian ancestors 25

Grottkau 26

Frankenstein 29

Reichenbach im Eulengebirge 30

Subscription concerts, symphony concerts, and dances 33

3 Berlin 1900–1907:

Studies at the Royal Academic Conservatory of Music 43

Move to the capital 43

Studies with Robert Hausmann 46

Conservatory concerts 48

Conservatory subjects 48

Support from the Carl Haase Foundation 51

One-Year Volunteer Service and support from patron Martin Lesser 52

Concerts outside the Berlin Conservatory 58

Participation in orchestras and contact with Karl Muck 59

4 Boston 1907–1910:

Boston Symphony Orchestra and Boston Pops Orchestra	61
Emigration to the USA	61
Cellist in the Boston Symphony Orchestra	63
Conductor of the Boston Pops Orchestra	69

Intermezzo:

The Kautzenbach family up to the beginning of the 1910s	75
---	----

5 New York City and US provinces, 1910–1917:

Collaboration with Victor Herbert, tour engagements, and first contact with silent films	83
Marian Hallett	83
Contact with Victor Herbert	87
Engagements in the provinces	92
Conductor of Victor Herbert's operettas	93
Chamber music and first contact with silent films	95
The consequences of World War I for German immigrants in the USA	99

Intermezzo:

The Kautzenbach/Kay family up to the 1920s	103
--	-----

6 Los Angeles, Seattle, and Chicago, 1918–1928:

Conductor, compiler, and composer for silent films	111
Grauman's Million Dollar Theatre, Los Angeles	111
Silent film prologues	116
Silent film accompaniment	122
Sunday Morning Concerts at Grauman's Million Dollar Theatre	125
Break with Sid Grauman	130

Coliseum Theatre, Seattle	131
Tivoli Theatre, Chicago	138
Loew's State Theatre, Los Angeles	139
Grauman's Chinese Theatre, Los Angeles	140
Original music for silent film	141
Music for Charlie Chaplin's silent film The Circus	146
Published silent film music	148
End of the silent movie era	152

7 Los Angeles, 1927–1951:

Conductor and composer for sound film	155
The emergence of the talkies	155
Vitaphone Varieties	156
KHJ Radio	158
The Fox Corporation	158
Movietone City	163
The sound film production process	164
Fox Corporation movies	167
Kay's music for The Big Trail	168
Sound film publishers	171
The end of employment at the Fox Corporation	172
Films at other studios	173
Stock music	176
US citizenship	177

Intermezzo:

The Kautzenbach/Kay family up to the 1940s	181
--	-----

8 Los Angeles, San Francisco, and New York, 1925–1966:

Conductor and arranger for operettas and musicals 189

Various theater engagements 189

Concerts, shows, and revues 192

Composition for the stage: Her Majesty, the Prince 195

Focus on operetta: the Annual Light Opera Festival 197

Los Angeles and San Francisco Civic Light Opera 198

Repertoires 201

Arranger for the stage: Song of Norway 202

Update of the scheduling policy 206

Further projects with George Forrest and Robert Wright 209

Last engagements 211

9 Arthur Kay and his siblings:

Final years 215

Abbreviations 219

List of works 227

Figure credits 249

Literature and sources 251

Name index 279