

Contents

Acknowledgements 11

I. The Sickbed, Spanish Society, and the Tumultuous 1930s and 1940s 13

1 Defending and Fighting for Society in the Hospital 13

2 Scope, Structure, and Limits 20

3 State-of-the-Art: A Dialogue 25

4 Fragments and Fragmentation – The Empirical Basis 35

II. ›Doing Society‹ at the Sickbed –
Conceptual Reflections 41

1 Doing – A Practice of Actors 43

2 Doing Society as Doing a Gendered Structure 49

3 Doing Gender and Society While Doing Medicine 52

III. Health and Medicine on the Road Towards the 1930s and 1940s 57

1 Legislation in Stagnation, Professions in Motion 58

1.1 Towards a Caring State: The Sanitary Law (1855) 60

1.2 Towards a New Labour Division:
The Rise of the Secular Professional Nurse 62

2 International Humanitarianism and the ›Traditional‹ Elites 71

2.1 A Hotbed of Elitism: The Spanish Red Cross 71

2.2 New Actors to the Stage of Humanitarian Relief Work:
LNHO, RF, IRA 78

3 An Armed Hydrocephalus Striving for Innovation 82

3.1 Yes, to Further Training; No, to Structural Change! 83

3.2 Spanish Translations of the Lessons Learned from the First World War 89

4 Medicine and Health Care in the Transition from Restoration to Republic 95

IV.	La Niña Bonita – La Niña Sana?	97
1	Governing Health, Building a Republic	103
1.1	Ruptures and Continuities	109
1.2	Peace During War, War During Peace	121
2	Towards a Social Order of War	136
2.1	Madrid – The Laboratory for the Medical Order of War	139
2.2	Men's Health – The People's Army	144
2.3	Inventing Masculinities, Ruling Medicine	159
2.4	Blood-Red Mothers, Hidden Heroes, and (Gender) Equality Discourses Put to the Test	186
V.	The Rebels' Insurrection – Franco's War	203
1	The Armed Forces and Its Supporters	209
2	Couping the Republic, Birthing the Dictatorship	222
2.1	After the Coup: Claiming the State, the Peninsula, and the Society	224
2.2	Power Broker: Building Medical Institutions, Building Single Leadership	235
2.3	The Health Service: A Laboratory of Modern Medicine?	264
3	Society-Building at the Sickbed	272
3.1	Becoming ›Noble Saviours‹: Coercion, Reluctance, Conformation	273
3.2	Submissive ›Angels of the Hospital?	286
VI.	Nursing the ›Peace?	303
1	Winning and Losing: The Beginning of ›Victory?	305
2	The Return of the ›Prodigal Children	322
3	Integrating Victorious ›Heroes‹ and ›Angels?	341
4	Phoenix from the Ashes: Damas Auxiliares – A Place for the ›Ladies‹ of Francoism?	356
5	The Making of Francoist Society in Times of ›Peace	377

VII. Spanish Society at the Sickbed: Final Reflections	381
Abbreviations	395
Sources and Archives	397
Literature	401
Index	428