

Contents

Preface	7
Introduction	11
Chapter 1: Smellscape, An Ekphrasis	25
1.1 Documenting Smells: Scientific Categorization and Artistic Archives	26
1.2 Depictions of Olfactory Experiences in Chinese Characters	30
1.3 Cross-Media and Cross-Sensory Ekphrasis in Smell-Mediated Works	38
Chapter 2: The Smell of Money	47
2.1 Aromatic Money	49
2.2 Liquid Money—Liquid Relationships	55
2.3 Pig Manure vs. Cow Manure: An Interdisciplinary Case Study	59
2.4 Money's Smellscape from Money's Native Context	64
Chapter 3: The Risk of Smell	73
3.1 City Smellscape and Risk Exposure	74
3.2 Measuring Smell Risk: Measurable Uncertainty	87
3.3 Smell Risk Position: Hazard Assessment	94
3.4 Beyond Risk: Immeasurable Uncertainties	99

Chapter 4: The Profits of Smell	105
4.1 Perfume: Consumption and the Construction of Identity	106
4.2 The Cultivation of the Individual: Fragrance and Incense Practices in East Asia	114
4.3 Macro-attribution: Capitalism as a “Miasma” in Modern Society	124
4.4 An Expansive Discussion: Economic Models and Mediating Ecological Crises	136
Chapter 5: The Time Value of Smell	141
5.1 Increasing Entropy: Incense Clocks in East Asia	145
5.2 The Smell of Memory: Modeling Time Series	150
5.3 The Smell of History: “Three Times” by Daniel Arasse	157
5.4 The Smell of Cultural Memory: The Net of Indra	163
5.5 Symmetric Time: Bayes’ Theorem	168
Conclusion	179
6.1 What can smell-mediated works contribute to solving ecological crises?	180
6.2 Who are the audiences? Who can be influenced by the works?	183
6.3 Evolution or Destruction? Save the ecology or ourselves?	186
Bibliography	191