

Contents

Acknowledgements — v

1	Introduction: Currents in Scroll and Intertextual Scholarship — 1
1.1	The History of Religious and Unreligious Interpretations — 3
1.2	Movements in Modern Esther Criticism — 11
1.3	Intertextual Methodology and Relative Chronologies — 16

Part One: The Allusive Megillah and the Scholarly Attempts to Understand It

2	Textual Connections and Scholarly Histories — 27
2.1	The Import of Self-control and the Unusual Language Used to Express It — 27
2.2	The Scholarly History of Esther's Relationship with Joseph — 31
2.3	The Shared Syntax of Judah and Esther's Decisive Speeches — 38
3	Other Intertextual Relationships and Esther and Joseph's Good Looks — 42
3.1	Approaches to Esther's Other Intertextual Connections — 42
3.1.1	Gerleman and the Exodus — 42
3.1.2	Expansive Intertextuality in Grossman's Hidden Reading — 45
3.1.3	Berger's Emphasis on Esther and Saul — 48
3.2	Joseph and Esther's Paralleled Good Looks — 51
3.3	Present Intertextual Directions — 53

Part Two: Compositional and Structural Considerations

4	Esther's Compositional History and the Development of its Allusive Purpose — 57
4.1	Esther's Greek Witnesses — 57
4.2	Scholarly Debates — 61
4.3	Intertextual Commonalities in MT and AT — 65
4.4	Differences in the Intertextuality of AT and MT — 68
4.4.1	Table One — 71
4.5	Pluses and Minuses in MT and AT — 73

5	The Redactional Stages and Narrative Cohesiveness of MT Esther's Final Literary Form — 77
5.1	Attempts to Divide the Literary Integrity of the Hebrew Scroll — 77
5.2	Interlocking Inversions in MT Esther and Joseph — 80
5.3	The Narrative Connectivity of Multiple Conflicts in Esther 8–10 — 83
5.4	Complex Conflicts and Multiple Resolutions in Joseph — 86
5.5	Compositional Histories and Author-oriented Intertextuality — 90

Part Three: The Theology of Esther and Contrast of Daniel

6	The Theological Implications of Esther's Relationship with Joseph — 97
6.1	Koller's Politics of Exile — 97
6.2	Joseph's Divinely Initiated Patterns Reflected in Esther's Parallelized Movements — 100
6.3	The Significance of Divine Absence in MT Esther's Theology — 106
7	Daniel's Position in Joseph and Esther's Intertextual Chain — 112
7.1	The Dating of Daniel's Court Narratives — 112
7.2	Daniel and Esther — 113
7.3	Daniel and Joseph — 118
7.4	Daniel's Place in Joseph and Esther's Distinctive Relationship — 122
7.5	Daniel and Isaiah, Esther and Joseph — 125
8	Conclusion: Esther's Intertextual Reflections and Theological Additions — 128
8.1	Three Refinements to Author-oriented Biblical Intertextuality — 128
8.2	The Significance of the Scroll for Discussions of Divine Absence — 133
Bibliography — 139
Subject Index — 147
Index of Secondary Authors — 149
Index of Biblical Passages — 151	