

Contents

Foreword	V
1. Introduction	1
I. Relevance	1
II. Research question	4
III. State of the Art	7
IV. Outline/Structure	8
2. Theoretical Framework	9
I. The 'Grand Theories' of European Integration	9
II. Strands of Euroscepticism	10
III. European integration through the lens of constructivism	13
3. Methodology	17
4. Analysing the attitudes of Portuguese voters towards the EU	21
I. Perception of Democratic Deficit	23
II. Salience of EU-related issues	26
a. Unemployment	27
b. Inflation	29
c. Immigration	30
5. Portuguese Populism and the Scope for Euroscepticism in Portugal	33
I. Distinction and Intersection between Populism and Euroscepticism	33
II. "Exploitation of the Crisis" populist strategy	38

6. Case Study I – the March 2024 legislative election	41
I. Initial Analysis and Impact	41
II. Possible explanations for the Chega! surge in the 2024 elections	42
III. Chega! vis-à-vis Europe: hard or soft – (or non-) Eurosceptic?	46
IV. Portuguese Perceptions of Chega! vis-à-vis Europe	50
7. Case Study II – the June 2024 European Parliament Election	55
I. Correlation between National and European Results	55
II. The election results: a repudiation of Euroscepticism?	57
II. Possible explanations for the decline of Chega! in the 2024 EP election	58
8. Conclusion	61
9. Afterword: Enough of Enough?	67
List of Abbreviations	71
List of Tables and Figures	73
Bibliography	75
Annexes	83