

Contents

List of maps	ix
Acknowledgements	x
Synoptic table of plans for Germanization, displacements of population, and construction	xii
Introduction	xvii
Prologue: The moment of Utopia (September 1939–summer 1943)	1
The mist-enshrouded time of foundations (1 September–30 November 1939)	2
The round of short-term plans (1 December 1939–21 June 1941)	8
New horizons: the General Plan for the East (22 June 1941–15 February 1943)	21
Part I The men and the institutions of Utopia
1 A nebula of institutions	29
The diversity of the institutions of Utopia	29
The central institutions: RKFDV, RSHA, WVHA	29
The regional and local extensions of the SS: HSSPF and SSPF	33
Local agencies and institutions: EWZ and UWZ	35
Civilian administrations of incorporated and occupied territories	36
How consensus was generated	37
Forms and thoughts of the future in the East: the three main general plans	43
The RSHA plans	43
The WVHA memoranda	45
Planning the RKFDV	46
2 Networks and trajectories of the men of the East	48
‘Men’ of the East? A world in itself	48
Professional networks and military networks	52
Towards genocide? The itineraries of the experts	57

3	Osteinsatz : the journey to the East, a form of Nazi fervour	65
	The East, between Utopia and anxiety	66
	The myths of the Great Trek	72
	The racial, hygienic and educational dimensions	80
	Conclusion	88

Part II Times and spaces of Utopia

4	General planning for the East	93
	The curse of Germanic insularity lifted	95
	Umwolkung : dissimilation or ethnomorphosis?	102
	The drying up of the alien ocean: mass murder and Utopia	108
5	At the School of Fine Arts	116
	Thinking about space	117
	City, Volksgemeinschaft and segregation	124
	Dreaming of rural space: the architect, the SS and the peasant	131
6	From one plan to the next? The Kammler sequence	138
	On planning style : the WVHA, Hans Kammler and their estimates	138
	Achieving Utopia? The institutionalization and failure of building programmes	144
	From the future back to the present: Utopia evaporates	150
	Conclusion	156

Part III The case of Zamość

	Introduction	161
7	The microcosms of radical policy: Zamojszczyzna	162
	The men, the space and the past of Zamojszczyzna	162
	Institutional microcosms	168
	The land of all Nazi radicalisms	173
8	The politics of the laboratory	179
	Classifying, expelling, deporting: the social engineering at the basis of Utopia	180
	Building: the Nazi attempt to shape the territory	186
	Building, installing, settling: at the heart of a new world	192
9	The nightmare: from the ethnic domino effect to the flames of despair	200
	In the full sight of all: the extermination of the Jews, prior to Germanization	201

A society martyred	207
Wars of the entre-soi ('inter-self wars'), (1943–1945)	214
Conclusion	223
Notes	229
Appendix 1: Main acronyms used in the text	274
Appendix 2: Organizational chart of the SS institutions of Utopia	276
Timeline	278
Index	307