

Contents

|          |                                                              |           |
|----------|--------------------------------------------------------------|-----------|
| 1 | Introduction                                          | 1  |
| 1.1      | From the Dyad to the Triad                                   | 1         |
| 1.1.1    | Praise of Society—Criticism of Theory: An Initial Approach   | 1         |
| 1.1.2    | Socioeconomics                                               | 2         |
| 1.1.3    | Toward a New Economic Theory                                 | 3         |
| 1.1.4    | The Vertical and the Horizontal                              | 4         |
| 1.2      | The Task                                                     | 7         |
| 1.2.1    | Intertwining the Vertical and the Horizontal Dimension       | 7         |
| 1.2.2    | Theory Type: Mechanistic Versus Evolutionary-Systemic        | 9         |
| 1.2.3    | Scarcity: Economizing Versus Economy                         | 9         |
| 1.2.4    | A Parable                                                    | 10        |
| 1.2.5    | The Concept of Scarcity: Logic of Choice Versus Catallactics | 11        |
| 1.3      | Economics and Sociology                                      | 14        |
| 1.3.1    | Reductionism in Economics and Sociology                      | 14        |
| 1.3.2    | The Old and the New Paradigm                                 | 17        |
|          | References                                                   | 18        |
| 2 | Society                                               | 19 |
| 2.1      | Synthesis                                                    | 20        |
| 2.2      | Elements                                                     | 21        |
| 2.3      | Pooling and Exchange                                         | 23        |
| 2.4      | Intensity and Extensity of Societies                         | 25        |
| 2.5      | Supra-Individual Formations                                  | 26        |
| 2.6      | The Structural Organization of Society                       | 28        |
| 2.6.1    | Organization and Society                                     | 28        |
| 2.6.2    | The State and Civil Society                                  | 30        |
| 2.6.3    | Conditions for the Establishment of Society                  | 34        |

|            |                                                                                 |     |
|------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| 2.6.4      | Society as Form—Politics as Design .....                                        | 37  |
| 2.6.5      | The Opposite of Society: The Socialist/CommunistConcept .....               | 37  |
| References | .....                                                                           | 39  |
| 3   | Value Theory .....                                                       | 41  |
| 3.1        | The Old and the New Paradigm: The Difference .....                              | 41  |
| 3.1.1      | Socioeconomics Versus Mainstream: [V] or [V × H]? ...                           | 41  |
| 3.1.2      | The Two Types of Commensuration .....                                           | 46  |
| 3.2        | Theory of Value: The “Logic of Choice” (Verticalism) .....                      | 48  |
| 3.2.1      | The Robinson Crusoe Economy, or the Economyof the Isolated Man .....        | 48  |
| 3.2.2      | General Equilibrium and the Communist Fiction .....                             | 50  |
| 3.2.3      | The Norm of Equivalent Values Versus CatallacticReality .....               | 52  |
| 3.2.4      | Value Objectivism in Mainstream Economics .....                                 | 54  |
| 3.2.5      | Subjective Versus Objective Value Theory? One BigMisunderstanding .....     | 55  |
| 3.2.6      | The Role of Mathematics .....                                                   | 57  |
| 3.3        | Value Theory: Catallactics .....                                                | 58  |
| 3.3.1      | Values in the Making: The Objectification Process .....                         | 58  |
| 3.3.2      | Value Theory Versus Value Form Analysis .....                                   | 62  |
| 3.3.3      | Summary .....                                                                   | 63  |
| 3.4        | Value Theory: Further Clarification .....                                       | 64  |
| 3.4.1      | Things, Objects, Goods, Commodities, and Money .....                            | 64  |
| 3.4.2      | Mainstream: Neither Natural nor Cultural Science .....                          | 66  |
| 3.4.3      | Equality Versus Equating, or = vs :=: .....                                     | 67  |
| 3.4.4      | Economy as the Language of the Economy .....                                    | 68  |
| 3.5        | The Denial of Reduction, False Labeling, and SomeConsequences Thereof ..... | 69  |
| 3.5.1      | The Logic of the Argument .....                                                 | 69  |
| 3.5.2      | “Real” Analysis .....                                                           | 70  |
| 3.5.3      | False Labels .....                                                              | 72  |
| 3.5.4      | Active Neutralization Attempts .....                                            | 77  |
| 3.5.5      | Exceptions and Outsiders .....                                                  | 82  |
| 3.5.6      | Summary .....                                                                   | 83  |
| 3.6        | Value Form Theorists: Marx and Simmel .....                                     | 83  |
| 3.6.1      | Introduction: Value Quantity and Value Form Theory ...                          | 83  |
| 3.6.2      | Karl Marx .....                                                                 | 85  |
| 3.6.3      | Georg Simmel .....                                                              | 88  |
| 3.7        | Summary: Value Form Theory Instead of Value Theory .....                        | 98  |
| 3.8        | Comparison of Paradigms .....                                                   | 100 |
| References | .....                                                                           | 105 |

|          |                                                                                   |     |
|----------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| 4 | Exchange, Money, Society                                                   | 109 |
| 4.1      | Emergence and Gestalt                                                             | 109 |
| 4.2      | The Formal Structure of Exchange                                                  | 111 |
| 4.2.1    | Giving, Taking, Compensating ...                                                  | 111 |
| 4.2.2    | Exchange as a Building Block of Society                                           | 112 |
| 4.2.3    | Acts of Exchange Are Acts of Equating                                             | 113 |
| 4.2.4    | Exchange for Money                                                                | 114 |
| 4.3      | Barter and Exchange                                                               | 115 |
| 4.3.1    | Exchange Frees Up Human Potential                                                 | 115 |
| 4.3.2    | Barter and Gift Economies                                                         | 118 |
| 4.3.3    | Community Versus Society                                                          | 120 |
| 4.3.4    | Gift Economies?                                                                   | 123 |
| 4.4      | The State and Civil Society                                                       | 124 |
|          | References                                                                        | 125 |
| 5 | Money                                                                      | 127 |
| 5.1      | On the Methodology of Analyzing Money: How to GoAbout It?                     | 127 |
| 5.1.1    | Again: $V$ Versus $V \times H$                                                    | 128 |
| 5.1.2    | Economy as Space Created by Exchange and Money:Money is the Primary Commodity | 129 |
| 5.1.3    | The History of Money: Function Over Material                                      | 131 |
| 5.1.4    | Abstract and Concrete Money: Abstract and ConcreteTheories of Money           | 132 |
| 5.1.5    | Extensity, Intensity, and the Limits of Money                                     | 133 |
| 5.2      | The Economic Functions of Money                                                   | 135 |
| 5.2.1    | The Functions of Money at a Glance                                                | 135 |
| 5.2.2    | Money as a Means of Transaction                                                   | 138 |
| 5.2.3    | Store of Value and Means of Speculation                                           | 143 |
| 5.2.4    | Money as a Means of Calculation (Accounting)                                      | 144 |
| 5.3      | Money Versus Non-Money—demarcations                                               | 150 |
| 5.3.1    | Money Versus All Other Assets                                                     | 150 |
| 5.3.2    | Money Versus Credit                                                               | 153 |
| 5.4      | Money: Function and Material                                                      | 163 |
| 5.4.1    | Questions                                                                         | 163 |
| 5.4.2    | Money Materials: A First Overview                                                 | 164 |
| 5.4.3    | Requirements for the Money Material                                               | 166 |
| 5.4.4    | The Evolution of Money: Driving Forces                                            | 168 |
| 5.4.5    | Substantial and Symbolic Money: Advantagesand Disadvantages                   | 169 |
| 5.4.6    | Symbolic Money and Gains from Money Creation                                      | 172 |
| 5.4.7    | Scope of Money Creation Profits                                                   | 173 |
| 5.5      | The Era of Symbolic Money                                                         | 175 |
| 5.5.1    | Upheaval                                                                          | 175 |

- 5.5.2 Funneling In Sovereign Money, Funneling Out Private Money ..... 181
- 5.6 Book Money ..... 184
  - 5.6.1 Issue ..... 184
  - 5.6.2 Definition of Book Money ..... 184
  - 5.6.3 The Power of Commercial Banks to Create Money ..... 186
- 5.7 Monetary Constitutions ..... 190
  - 5.7.1 Who? How? What? ..... 190
  - 5.7.2 One- and Two-Tier Monetary Systems ..... 191
  - 5.7.3 The Role of Central Banks and Banks in the Fractional Monetary System ..... 193
- 5.8 On the Political Economy of Money Creation—The Sovereign Money Concept ..... 199
  - 5.8.1 (Sovereign) Money and Its Administration: Eight Theses ..... 200
  - 5.8.2 Designing the Monetary System ..... 200
  - 5.8.3 Money Creation Systems in Comparison: Why the Sovereign Money System is Better? ..... 204
- 5.9 Gestalt or Systemic Monetary Functions ..... 214
  - 5.9.1 Introduction ..... 214
  - 5.9.2 The Properties of Gestalt ..... 216
- 5.10 Self-Organization (Autopoiesis) ..... 223
- 5.11 Monetary Growth and the Limits of Nature ..... 229
- References ..... 236
- 6 Money and “Socialism” ..... 239
  - References ..... 245
- 7 Summary: or, What’s New Here? ..... 247
  - Reference ..... 256
- References ..... 257
- Index of Persons ..... 269
- Subject Index ..... 273