

Contents

- 4 “The Promised Land is beheld, not entered.”
- 12 Editors’ Foreword
- 14 On This Book and its Prehistory
Katrín Arrieta, Torsten Blume, Cornelia Nowak, Adina Christine Rösch
- 20 “I drew from no external source.”
- 32 How Modern Romanticism is Possible
On “Romanticism” as Perspective and Model
A Conversation Between Torsten Blume and Sandra Kerschbaumer
- 46 A Romantic from the Bauhaus
The Lasting Effect of the School of Design
Torsten Blume
- 64 “Play is in its nature symbolic, and the symbol is generative of consciousness.”
- 76 On the Fate of Origins and the Longing for a Home
T. Lux Feininger and His Family
Justus H. Ulbricht
- The Everlasting Longing
An Enthusiastic-Ironic Romantic
Cornelia Nowak
- 100 Ships, the Sea, and Clouds
The Maritime Passion of T. Lux and Lyonel Feininger
Katja Schneider
- 115 “I painted ships because I wanted to make pictures.”

- 130 Of What Can Never be Experienced Again
The Romantic Inspiration of T. Lux Feininger
Andreas Platthaus
- 140 Magic Moments
T. Lux Feininger Between Love and Burden
Adina Christine Rosch
- 154 “Painting was my salvation.”
- 168 Political—Affected—Encrypted
A Political Artist
Torsten Blume, Elias Schulz
- 178 Landscapes of the Soul as Fantasies of a Journey through Nature
On the Search for the Primordial
Katrín Arrieta
- 192 “[Reality] had [...] become subjective.”
- 210 “Come and see what’s here.”
The T. Lux Feininger Catalogue Raisonné at www.Kunst-Archive.net
Siegfried B. Schafer
- 218 “My Father Means a Lot to Me.”
Conrad Feininger in conversation with Torsten Blume
- 228 “Where something resonates in the heart you will find the true memories.”
- 240 T. Lux Feininger: Biography
Torsten Blume
- 250 Appendix
Literature and Sources, Colophon,
Image Credits, Copyrights